The Pres Letter-

Happy New Year to you all! Here's to a year filled with the wealth of friendship and the health of your body, mind, and soul!

I hope you have noticed the changes we have made as your officers to fill our time together with more hanging out and riding and less business talk. This year, we will continue to have our business meeting the second Tuesday of each month, 7:00 PM, via a conference call. All members can participate. The call conference call-in number and code are included on the calendar.

We start off 2020 with a movie at the NW Vintage Car and Motorcycle Museum in Brooks. Join us for "The Great Escape" on January 18th at 1:00 PM. On February 8th, we will be meeting at 10:00 AM at the Indian Display in the Exhibit Hall of the Memorial Coliseum at the One Motorcycle Show. Indian Motorcycles is again sponsoring the OneShow. This year is the 100th Anniversary of the Indian Scout. Thor Drake has asked for Tom's and my help to find Scouts to showcase. Thus far, we have 6. If you know of anyone with a Scout, please let me know. So far, we have 17 antique bikes for display - a long way from having 1 bike by 1 member 4 years ago! I am still looking for more bikes. Please contact me if you have a bike you would like to display at the show.

Be sure to check out the club calendar on page 8. As you can see, we have a few months to fill with activities. Contact Bill Quaccia or me by phone, email or text with some ideas. This is YOUR club, so please provide input if there is something you really want the club to do.

I am looking forward to seeing each and every one of you in the year ahead. Let's have some fun hanging out and enjoying our common love - motorcycles!!

Peace out folks,
Jen

Don't Forget Winona

By Martin Doerfler

Winona, Arizona is a pretty forgettable dot on the map about 15 miles east of Flagstaff that Bobby Troup discovered was just the right thing to make his "Get Your Kicks on Route 66" rhyme work. We were there 'cause that's the exit you take off I-40 to get to Cinder Mountain Cycle. And, even if you're not going to visit the weirdest motorcycle shop in Arizona, any exit off I-40 is a good one.

We had driven from Salem via I-5 to Sacramento, overnighed with our grandson and then on to El Mirage dry lake to see old land speed racing friends (more later). At Barstow, California we hit 80 mile per hour – trucks included – I-40. And very few minutes into the 6 hour plus drive to Flagstaff we realized that it's a truckers world and we only live in it. Tractor trailer convoys doing 80 on the downhills and plugging the left lane at 35 on the uphill made for a long angry drive - so we - my wife and I in our old Chevy Astro – were more than happy to bail off I-40 at the Winona exit.

Then the fun began. After a bit of relaxing two-lane blacktop, we found Cinder Mountain Cycle owner John waiting at his driveway to lead us to the shop. "Just a little washboard for the first two miles" he said. I grew up in Central Oregon, so I know washboard, but I've never been rattled this hard for this long in only two miles. To be fair, the last half mile to John's home, shops, wrecking yard, and shooting range wasn't too bad and when our teeth stopped chattering, I realized that we had come to a motorcycle mecca, a scroungers Shangri-la. I beheld literally acres of old scooters, a race track or two and at least three buildings that might be John's house, but turned out to be storage for more motorcycles and cover for shooters at his rifle and pistol ranges. (I never could figure out where he lived.) "Forty-two years off the grid" he said. No doubt. And forty-two years of collecting and building motorcycles. Antiques, road racers, drag racers, flat trackers, motocrossers. A very eclectic enthusiast is John.

Late in the day, having seen only a portion of John's amazing operation, we did the deal I'd driven 1,500 miles to make - selling my Triumph 500 flat tracker and taking in a Honda 150 motocrosser – bid John farewell and rattled our way back to Winona and Flagstaff to find a motel for the night. "Yes, we'll take it, surely the railroad won't run all night and there's a Pizza joint next door".

Next morning, after little sleep – the RR does run all night - and a lot of heartburn, we were off to the Grand Canyon and Zion. Indescribably awesome both. As in, how many time can you say a "holy sh*t !" ?

One day is not nearly enough in that country but we had a time schedule, so after a short as possible stretch of I-15, we overnighed in Beaver, UT (the Crazy Cow Cafe is not as cool as it sounds) and headed northwest across the high lonesome to Ely, Nevada and Highway 50, billed by the state as the "Loneliest Road in America". Balderdash! It's kinda lonely, but Nevada has many lonelier.

At Eureka (The Owl Club is as cool as it sounds) we turned north to Carlin (another lonely stretch) onto I-80 and west to Winnemucca, then 95 north to overnight with our old Best Western friends Ryan and Rory in Burns and home the next day.

The whole beautiful – minus the I-somethings - trip I had been thinking about old friends. In particular the two we surprised with the stop at El Mirage, my land speed racing buddy Bob and his wife Judy. They had welcomed us to the dry lake the first time we competed there in 2003. Even though they raced a car (multiple record setting Mazda powered '27 ford street roadster) and we raced bikes, we became great long distance friends. And now the distance grows longer. Bob is 83 and Judy whispered as we said goodbye, in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease. He may not remember me the next time. He may forget the times he helped me navigate the byzantine club structure of land speed racing or the day he helped me onto the tailgate of his truck after I had destroyed my Suzuki in a 150 plus mile per hour crash. "Did you shut the gas off?" I asked. He laughed and told me the gas tank was about a hundred yards from the rest of the bike so no problem. He may forget that, so I will do the remembering for both is us. I won't forget you Old Prozac.

And, I won't forget Winona.

Vintage Motorcycles in Portugal

By James McQuiston

My wife and I recently went to Portugal. While in search of lunch, we stumbled on a vintage bike club. It looked like a small museum and was unlocked. So I ventured inside. A lone couple was having a lunch while tending the bikes. It is a gathering spot for a couple of local vintage racing clubs. A nice display is rotated through and provides a cool environment. Checkout the Bonneville Beer Tap (we all want one of these). This was located in Sentra, Portugal (about 15miles from Lisbon up in the hills). There was a nice group of British bikes and another group of motocross bikes.
