THE LAST ENEMY TO BE DEFEATED IS DEATH (1Cor.15:26) King James Version

Introduction 1. The Story of Life

The last enemy to be defeated is death was also the first enemy defeated. It ended as it began. Life did not start with a big bang it started more as a whimper. Now life as you know it is about to end but first a little background on why it all began. Humankind has been on this planet for over five million years. They evolved according to who was in control until 49,000 years ago before they became homo-sapiens. A series of lords ruled the surface of the planet and attempted to do many great things. Ultimately and paradoxically, they all failed and succeeded. The first man had a brain larger than yours and he could do what you cannot. He thought like God. It was at this moment that the order was given to seize this planet from its original owners. That was only 6,000 years ago. The reasons will become increasingly clear. The reason it ends is even clearer.

On this planet there were two types of inhabitants, the caretakers and the invaders.

Throughout history, humanity has followed many pagan gods. A pagan god is a deity that specialized in one aspect of creation and cultivated a following that would, in turn worship him, feed him and do whatever the deity needed to be done. But the main thing was a pagan god was selected by men because of what he or it could do for them. Today, there is much discussion among all religions on who's more accurate in their description of the wrathfulness of their god and who can provide for their needs. This is how most of the very learned of you have chosen who would be your god. This is not the way it really is. You have no right to choose.

Some believe that Jehovah is God or that Yahweh is God and he will one day send a Messiah that his wrath will be known and his people will be avenged. That is quite an odd belief since Jehovah's and or Yahweh's people are known as the Jews and they executed the son of God. He was the only known being that came when called Elias and they still did not believe. He called out in Aramaic "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani, that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Matthew: (27: 46).

Then, there are those who believe that Jesus is God, even though Jesus said, without any interpretation needed, that I am not the father, I am the son (John 14:10) and none is good other than my father, who art in heaven. Even with that statement a common and emphatic belief is that Jesus is the father and even the denials of Jesus himself seem not to be heard by those who will not hear. Then, there is the group that has many mighty lords but they chose one among them as their God and they sent the angel Gabriel to deliver the message. When the elders of that faith died off and their children fought for the power this lord left behind, the utterance of his name alone was enough to split this faith in half, with both sides saying that only their way was right. They began stating, without equivocation that their scripture was from Gods mouth to Muhammads ear even though Muhammad never met God... He met Archangel Gabriel Qur'an (II: 97, 98; LXVI: 4);

It is a falsehood to say the words that became the Qur'an are not true for they are part of the truth but the entire truth lies in the quest for answering all faiths. If you cannot answer all the questions of the many faiths, you have only small portions of the true answer.

If a Muslim says the Hebrew are a curse or a Christian says that Christianity is the true religion because they have the resurrected son, they all fall by not knowing and not telling the full truth and giving all life their proper place. God created all life and you know and tell barely one-tenth of the truth. There is a difference between Gods truth and your truth. Your truth is based in sin and is a lie. These actions are very much pagan-like. You are choosing your God when you have no right to do so. This is a warning and one you should heed, for the Father of God is on the planet and He is not pleased.

Holy Jewish and Christian scriptures describe the death of Satan, Archangel Michael and one-third of all angels in heaven when the Armageddon erupts. Scripture describes the Angel's orders in regard to all human existence. Most humans are to be decimated. You are to be destroyed to the last cell with a remaining one hundred and forty-four thousand that would be allowed to live with Jesus, who would be their God.

At no time does any scripture reconcile the facts, as most people believe that the earth has been here for billions of years and man has been here for millions of years. Yet scripture only references a momentous occurrence up to 6000 years ago. If you cannot put it all together you have none of the true story

Consider these little known facts that Devil's wait, for, either their death or for the return of God. And Devils were the only ones who while were not enlightened, recognized and obeyed Jesus when he walked the earth.

Islam believes that there was no original sin in eating the apple but that sin came when Satan refused to lie down in a face down position in front of Adam. Q. 2:34

The story of God was found in every region of the earth yet many of the scriptures found were in dying dialects of languages, and they were wrongly deciphered and all written through inspirational writing's thousands of years after the original transcript was lost.

Sanskrit scrolls are still being translated and they differ slightly with what Jesus said in the gospels. The book of Thomas the Apostle recites that he did not hear Jesus say that 'he would return within their generation, for, Thomas says, 'God is already here;'. Gnostic Gospel of Thomas.

Most of the Dead Sea scrolls were written in Hebrew with the rest in Hebrew or Aramaic but this is not where the original texts came from. The scrolls were found in the late 1940's (www.usc.edu)

Various forms of the religions have been around for hundreds, even thousands of years prior to this discovery. Even knowing this, you must understand that the time lines of those discoveries, to this day, differ because they did not know even, at what time these events took place. It depended on what calendars were being used at the time of translation, which was sometimes several thousand years after the event took place.

How can you say you understand the event when you did not even have the correct time of the event?

Some of the scripture came from dead languages and were translated into Greek or Hebrew and now there are many versions translated into English. Then there were interpretations of other translations to all the other common languages. Sometimes, humankind interprets what they have already translated because there was something that did not sit well with the old translation, thus starting a new holy order. This is what they call it but it could just as easily be called an unholy order, because most of what is done is based in sin.

Remember, we love the sinner we are about to kill but we hate the sin we are going to do again tomorrow because we are the sinners. We are the unholy. We are what we say, we hate. We always become what we hate. And as we know, history repeats itself. Some of you have pondered these questions. What if all the worlds secrets were already told to you but you were not listening and did not understand them? What if, what you have seen your entire life was what has happened before and would happen again if needed? What if I told you that is what has happened from the beginning of this Earth as it is known today? And what if I told you that is what indeed happened and continues to happen till the very end day? And what if every single life form came from the original cell of God and He left a blue print of how it would end when he returned. Finally, let me tell you how it ends and let me tell you what life has been about.

On this earth, science has said we have been here for millions of years. Yet, for that momentous event that took place only 6000 years or so ago, there is no trace of God who started it all. Genesis 1:31 How could that be? How could all these religions and races be? How can science and every single religion on this earth be correct from the very beginning?

This is the end as you know it, So hang on to your hats, for this is the first known hail from a planet, then known as the Majesty, and the first reference of a being that would one day be called God and how he came to be.

This is His journey and how he arrived at his destiny. He did not look for The Godhead but it found him.

ii. The Thousand Lights of Majesty

6,200,000 YEARS AGO

The un-encrypted message telling of the imminent death of God

He came from the Sea of Eyes. It no longer exists outside of him. He was the ultimate of his kind. He is the youngest of his kind. But don't take his small size as a sign of fragility, for he is War. He is every war. He will be in every war till evil, the seed is relinquished. Then, at the proper time, he will enter either the seed of evil or who carries it and destroy only himself. He will leave the occupant, who is not at fault for having this seed, without permanent injury. But our gentle being, which comes to rescue you, will perish. Never to be seen again. His death will be eternal without a major intervention.

We have heard many dynasties call for assistance, their cries for help, and their prayers for a better day and their hopes that their god can help them. We understand your desperation, so we are shutting down as a civilization until this deed is accomplished.

We are the Eyes of the Seven Super Universes. We watch all things pertaining to your lords. We help whenever we are able. In our place we were known as the Thousand Lights of Majesty, where heroes could be found on every corner and where laughter and music were the air. We are decedents of the Ancients of Old from the Sea of Wills, who left once others began dreaming of building their own dynasties.

It all began for us when we used to watch four children playing in the Sea of Wills, three males and one female. As they played, they would merge and form a larger being. This gave them an appearance of fierceness whenever they felt threatened. This was puzzling. They seemed to be unaware that nothing in the Sea of Wills would or could hurt them. This was a law that the greatest being there had created and no one even thought to challenge it. Over time, we learned that the largest male child was named Armaggeddon. The second largest male child was called Dragoona and they seemed to be great friends. The slightest of the male children was called Andromeda and the female child was named Sky. She seemed to be the ring leader of this little gang who always made up the most amusing games. They were always a family and would pretend to have every sort of condition known in those times. It was always the same, one of them was in peril, there was the rescue and then they would giggle and congratulate each other on their brilliance or some such thing. We were all quite content just watching them play.

Sporadically, in the course of the games, a massive being, the law giver, would appear, as if it were looking for something in desperation. Sky would hide inside her friends because she was what the being was looking for. The being would present a massive eye to the one in control, who was always Armaggeddon and it would say. "Have you taken what is mine?" The answer was always the same. "If I had taken something that was yours I would have taken you first." The being would try to scan him to no avail. "What are you hiding?" "Why are you trespassing?" The two would be eye to eye, both seething for a fight and the bigger being always backed away out of respect for the little one and his own law. A time later, it was heard to be said by the larger being, "He would have fought me, even though he had no chance, all on account he felt he was right. I will meet him someday and explain my presence."

That explanation was not to come for there was a disagreement among the four of them. Andromeda had taken an energy seed cell that some of the more ambitious residents used to make their new dynasties with. The problem was, it was a dying energy, which meant that it required more and more sustenance to keep it alive. With all the personalities that had already used the seed, which was originally considered perfect, it began to create a madness that turned friend against friend, being against being and soon emptied the population of the Sea of Wills by more than ninety percent.

Much to Sky's horror Andromeda thought, that if they hid this seed they could control it. Sky felt the seed would destroy them, and their friendship, like it had so many others.

"There seems only one thing we can do. One of us must take it and leave the Sea of Wills." said Little Armaggeddon.

"I will take it." said Dragoona.

"I am stronger than you Dragoona, I will take It." answered Armaggeddon.

“That is why I must take it. If I cannot control it or destroy it, you must do it for me.” responded Dragoona.

Sky said. “Let’s have a show of hands on the following questions. First is it agreed that we must rid us of this seed called evil?”

It was unanimous.

“Secondly, is it agreed that one of us should take the seed away from here and breakup our friendship?” Sky asked.

Dragoona spoke what they all knew. “We have no choice Sky. If we do not, it will infect everything.”

“Who made such a thing?” Andromeda asked.

Dragoona answered. “Some of the Ancients developed this as a never-ending source of energy. It is what holds the auras in place. But some of the more ambitious one’s released it. At first it seemed to do no harm. Even to this day I’m certain they do not see the harm that this does.”

The four young friends looked at each other with a certain amount of distress as the next question was going to be asked and decided. “Which one of us should go, or should we all go?”

Dragoona said “I should go. I think I can handle this. I will build a dynasty that we can all live in.”

“You will not take this. I will.” said Armaggeddon.

Sky interjected. “Let there be a show of support for the one who will begin this important mission.”

With a final vote Dragoona was selected over Armaggeddon, which set off a great rage in Armaggeddon. He left not only the group but the Sea of Wills at that moment.

Dragoona packed his provisions and Andromeda convinced him to let him tag along thinking they would meet Armaggeddon on the way.

That would not be the case, Armageddon would not be seen again In the Sea of Wills till the moment of one's death.

Sky instinctively knew she had to stay behind. She had inklings of motherhood and fatherhood, a family of sorts within. She knew that she was in love with the being that was searching for its own. Sky remembered falling out of that being and she longed to return to him.

In time, things started to settle down in the Sea of Wills, with the seed no longer radiating its poison but there were rumblings on the outside the barriers of horrors beginning to happen. So we, The Thousand Lights of Majesty became the Sea of Eyes, away from the Sea of Wills but still in contact at our discretion. We were the place of Messiahs or Saviors. This was our common link.

Then one day, we came across a very angry little Armageddon and asked him to join us. We knew of his mission and told him that he could not defeat the seed yet, but if he came with us we would teach him everything there was to know, to destroy it. But we told him that we could not teach him how to survive the war and that he would likely die.

His answer was haunting but not so unusual in the place where we lived. "My life does not matter to me. Let me be the death of the seed." And so began his journey toward death. He was just thirty-one centimeters tall when we found him.

We taught him the ways of combat without killing, how to live a good life 'till the day he confronts the seed and how to enjoy the life he was to have for as long as he was allowed. He knew his time with us was short as the Prayers from the Ages began getting stronger each time.

We knew there was no more about death that we could teach him, so we tested his Might and Will for the last time. It was a vicious test, one that still sickens us to this moment. We had him stand at the top of a hill and all of us, the one thousand attacked him. At the end, he was severely wounded but we were also severely beaten and yet, he was still standing, wounds and all. He waved off our healers 'till they helped everyone else first, which they did in great haste. Only then, did he allow his wounds to be dressed. He was fifty-three centimeters. He grew with every positive step toward his goal.

Once we had recovered, we knew it was time to let him go. He was ready, so we prepared one last night of feasting and story-telling.

That night unbeknownst to this brave child warrior, it would be our last night as well for we would enter him. We called him our angel of death, for he would destroy the seed and as a reward for his dedication, we made it so he would not suffer for long from his wounds, but would die. It would be an act of eternal death accepted it without a whimper, our little friend. You will never know him and it's best for you, that you do not so we will leave no trace of us ever being here and you will doubt it ever happened at all.

We did open a beacon and left it for the two great civilizations that abhorred death. We explained his mission in detail. We told that we had done everything we could but the one thing we could not teach him was how to live. We could not teach him about life. We described where we found him, with three other friends in the Sea of Wills. We implored all to turn his Will to life. He found his way to both of those civilizations, one showed him death, the other life.

iiiGOD

Have you ever really thought about God?
I repeat. Have you ever really thought about God?
I mean, have you ever really thought about who He is?
Where does He go when He is lonely?
What does He do when He is sad?
With whom does He meet to share a moment of joy?
Where does He go? Where has He been?
What size is His shoe? Who are His kin?
Suppose I told you that God was here.
He is doing a tour of duty.
Would you rush out to greet him?
Or would you hide in your sin?
To be Adam, man on the Eve of Armageddon
Is to be a Damned man on the doorstep of time and of creation itself.

The mystery of God has never been told. His face has never been seen. You have been told that He lives in a heaven but no one has ever been there. When He is thought of, it is as one who is loving, terrifying, jealous, wrathful and one to be feared. He is all that, yet none of those things. Some of you believe that Jesus Christ is the Great God that started it all. Jesus has not only been seen, he lived among us. He also said that I am not the Father but the Son.

It will be, someday very soon now that Jesus Christ will be God. Not because he inherited the position but for the great and heroic deeds that he himself did and you are clearly not aware of.

God is everything you ever hoped for but nothing you could ever imagine.

I will tell you the story with as few descriptive passages as possible, for your part of this truth is inside you and it is for you to hear at judgment. I will, for the most part just give you the words spoken, in real time as events happened.

I will also give your some insight into a great family and the true vision of their individual personalities and their personality as one which is as diverse and complicated as it is beautiful.

This is the story of God...
