A View from the Top

From the arena to the trail, nationally recognized horse whisperer Missy Wryn gives the horse owner, rider and trainer alike a trainers view from the saddle using helmet camera technology. "Though I've produced many horse training videos over the years I recognized that as a viewer you can only observe, but with helmet camera technology you can experience!" says Wryn. "My specialty is bitless training, but many horse riders fear bitless with the common concern of not being able to stop their horse in a bolt or runaway situation. My first response when faced with this concern is a question to the rider 'how many times have you been on a runaway with a bit in the horse's mouth?' and the answer is always peppered with numerous stories of not being able to stop their horse despite the bit." Wryn continues "it is my enduring passion to continue teaching and demonstrating that bitless riding can be a safer option and a method for deepening the bond between you and your horse. With a helmet camera mounted I am now teaching atop my horse how to ride bitless by applying my Three Foundations and Five Fundamentals that are taught in my Training the Whole Horse® video series. Then I take you on adventures of semi-extreme bitless trail riding that includes muddy steep declines and inclines while ducking low branches at fast speeds. With my Training the Whole Horse® video series available for free viewing online I am adding my helmet cam videos to my free line-up as well*. My hope is to inspire by demonstrating that the freedom our hearts seek with our horses can be accomplished at greater depth and safer control riding bitless".

*Training the Whole Horse® video series is over 250 hours of horse training viewing and is completely free to view online whether on Missy Wryn's website www.MissyWryn.com (no log-in, no sign-up, no email required, truly FREE) or Missy's YouTube Channel. Missy's Bitless Trail Training & Riding videos are being added regularly to her horse training video line-up so check back frequently.
