

Hi, my name is Peanut, and I'm a "One-of-a-Kind" VERY active, lively and expressive 2½ year old Maltese / Chinese Crested puppy, (told you I was "one-of-a-Kind"...).

I love to play about as much as I love to sleep on your lap (or your computer table), but what I love the most is to... RUN (and Run... and run...).

My Foster Mom takes me along when she goes on her training runs (for her next half-marathon).

If you enjoy running (or jogging, or cycling) and want a little clown to do it with, I am DEFINITELY your guy.

I am well house trained and well suited to any environment, but I would love to have a fenced in yard to go out and explore (and make sure you are protected from woodchucks). I am good with kids, but not so much with cats (or those darn woodchucks). I love being with other dogs (I'm living with 8 of them right now), but my Foster dad says that I still have to work on my manners a bit when I meet new ones.

I love to give kisses and to "Play" chew on your fingers (don't worry, I have learned a LONG time ago not to close my mouth when I do that).

My previous family was very good at teaching me obedience (and tricks) so I have a very good mastery of the basic thing you will probably want me to do.

I even have excellent recall (well, except when those pesky woodchucks are around...).

My foster Dad said I was chubby when I came to live with them (even if I argued that it was just puppy fat), but with a slightly stricter diet and with me running with mom, I've slimmed down and toned up a bit to (almost) a perfect physique.

Hopefully we will get to meet soon, so I can start cuddling with you and give you all the attention (and laughs) you deserve.

XOXO,
Peanut.

Oh, before I forget, since I am being fostered by the nice people at Tiny Paws Dog Rescue, I am, of course, fully vetted, Neutered, Microchipped, and all my vaccinations are up to date.

And even with all that, my adoption fee is a miserly $375

(Now THAT'S a bargain don't you think, considering you will have my Exuberant and Cuddly self as your constant activity Buddy).

Please READ these instructions CAREFULLY
