3. Clients and Constituents: Political Responsiveness in Patronage Democracies. Book manuscript, accepted for publication at Cambridge University Press and Oxford University Press. Forthcoming in the Modern South Asia series with Oxford University Press.

In this book, I provide a theoretical and empirical examination of constituency service in developing countries. The predominant view of distributive politics in “patronage democracies” emphasizes the partisan targeting of pork and clientelism. In contrast, I demonstrate that high-level legislators in India and other contexts often provide direct, non-partisan assistance to individual constituents, whose electoral behavior they cannot conceivably monitor. Under what conditions do they provide constituency service, rather than engage in partisan bias? I show that the uneven character of access to services at the local level—often due to biased allocation on the part of local intermediaries—generates demand for help from higher-level officials, and also creates incentives for those politicians to bypass intermediaries by providing direct assistance. I draw on a novel data set with unprecedented parallel information on politicians, bureaucrats, and citizens; a large-scale field experiment with a near census of India’s state and national legislators; geo-located analyses of spending by legislators of constituency development funds; and evidence from in-depth qualitative shadowing of politicians in their constituencies. The book’s findings highlight the potential for an underappreciated form of democratic accountability, one that is however rooted in the character of partisan and patronage-based politics.

2. Institutional Capacity for Natural Disasters: Case Studies in Africa. 2014 (Editor and co-author). University of Texas at Austin: Robert S. Strauss Center for International Security and Law.
1. Corruption and Reform in India: Public Services in the Digital Age. 2012. Cambridge University Press.

Awards: Virginia M. - 2016 – 2017 Designed protocol and oversaw implementation of unique shadowing methodology for studying politicians in India. Involved development of training guide for eight field staff and coordination with four-member India-based team for multi-day, qualitative observation of more than twenty village- and state-level politicians.
- 2016 Designed and oversaw experimental, phone-based audit of politician responsiveness with a near census of state- and national-level politicians in India (~4,000 subjects). Included design of study in ten languages and coordination of implementation with three-person India-based team overseeing 40 research staff.
- 2015 – 2016 Managed team of four undergraduate students conducting research on political representation in India. Included design and assignment of research tasks, regular review of productivity and results, and management of weekly meetings.
- 2014 – 2015 Managed team of five undergraduate and graduate students assisting with research on technical solutions for bureaucratic transparency in India. Included allocating research assignments, review of results, and management of weekly meetings.
- 2012 – 2014 Planned and oversaw large-scale survey of citizens, politicians, and bureaucrats in three large Indian states (Bihar, Jharkhand, and Uttar Pradesh). Total sample size was ~12,600 subjects and included politicians and bureaucrats at all levels of government in India. Designed surveys and oversaw translation into Hindi, trained field investigators, and coordinated with India-based research team to conduct surveys and code results.
- 2011 – 2012 Managed team of eighteen graduate students conducting research on disaster preparedness in Africa. Included planning and coordination of field visits to ten African countries, development of interview template for fieldwork, and harmonization of written products for final report.
- 2009 Designed and oversaw citizen survey and field experiment in Karnataka, India (~1,100 respondents). Included questionnaire development and translation into Kannada, training of 27 field investigators, and oversight of field operations.
- 2006 – 2009 Conducted multiple field visits to sixteen Indian states, including coordination of site visits and interviews with more than 100 bureaucrats, politicians, and private sector representatives.
- 2000 – 2002 Business Strategist (Management Consultant), Viant Corporation
