

Internet Profiling and Intelligence Gathering

Presented by:

Michele Stuart of JAG Investigations, Inc.

Date: Tuesday, July 31, 2018

Location: Steelworkers Auditorium
8437 Sierra Ave, Fontana, CA 92335

Training: 0800 – 1700 hours

This 8-hour intense lecture presentation will provide step-by-step researching techniques utilizing online and open source databases located on the web. The instructor will cover techniques in locating actionable intelligence and “hidden” information on a subject's web presence as well as searching social media platforms to identify posted content and its corresponding geo location. This course will also outline cellular platform security issues and online personal security risks to help protect you and your family.

Goals

- Security Concerns – online v. cellular privacy, online dangers of being identified and tracked
- Public Records – how to find personal identifiers from public records/online sources
- Search Engines and Searching Techniques – search criteria manipulation, Google & Facebook facial recognition tools, locate cached/removed content from the internet, identify “fake” online accounts
- Internet Open Sources – difference between surface and deep web, international searching, how to identify ownership and domain of websites, how to identify relationships/associations of targeted subjects
- Social Networking Sites – identifying Facebook ID, track hashtags across platforms, geo locate Instagram photos and Twitter postings, locate personal online photo albums, how to properly view “private” Facebook information

Michele Stuart has over 28 years of experience conducting and coordinating comprehensive investigations for law enforcement, financial institutions, counter intelligence, and corporate clients.
