

TOP 5 REASONS TO PARTNER WITH JIM EBERT

Positive Mental Attitude – Jim’s “can-do” attitude is well balanced with a good sense of reality, which results in a boundary-stretching experience for all. He strives to be pleasant, professional, and conscientious with everyone he encounters, from the CEO all the way up to the Maintenance Crew!

Self Discipline – Jim is true to his word, meets his deadlines and commitments, and takes great pride in achieving and exceeding expectations. Mental and physical discipline is also displayed in his 2 IronMan Triathlon finishes, 6 Half-Iron Triathlons, and 2 Marathons. He’s always eager to talk triathlon!

Empathy – Jim relates well with others. He is able to meet them where they are and to move them along their development journey. This is especially important in a classroom setting when building trust and creating a safe learning environment is critical.

Resourcefulness – Jim has a long-time affiliation with other learning and development professionals with whom he routinely collaborates, benchmarks, and shares best practices. This rich network enables him to remain relevant and current with industry trends and to create the best solution.

Experience – 34 years with MillerCoors was an incredible experience! This included 18 years of various sales management positions across the US, followed by leadership roles in learning and development and leadership development. These varied experiences gave Jim a unique perspective, and now enables him to follow his learning and development passion and dreams and partner with others.