PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

2017 is here, and a new year always brings a sense of new opportunities. Chances are, you'd like to write more, and maybe even publish your work. This takes work, and it pays to start with small steps and work your way up. Like a resolution to lose weight, it's not something you're likely to achieve overnight. It's going to take some discipline. Here's an idea to get you started. The North State Writers is taking submissions for an anthology we're putting together. You can submit up to 3 short stories or poems for a small reading fee of $10 each. Works will be read anonymously and selections will be published in our 2017 anthology. It's a great way to get your work out there to some new readers and hone your craft.

North State Writers will also be participating in Butte College's Wordspring this year. This is a conference for writers that can also help you learn more about the craft of writing. There will be some professional writers giving classes, including one on independent publishing. You won't want to miss it.

If you're not ready for an anthology or a writer's conference, come to our meetings. We have a number of new and seasoned writers, editors, and artists there who can help you at any stage in your journey. We want you to feel welcome and supported. We want you to succeed, and we hope that you will go far in your writing career. Maybe you'll even mention us in your acknowledgments! We should all strive to dream.

Steven J. Thompson
President, North State Writers
Branch 21-California Writers Club

EDITOR'S CORNER

2017 is already shaping up to be a busy year for North State Writers. Plans are underway for several book promotion events for members and we have some excellent speakers scheduled. Additional information will be coming shortly regarding The Paradise Chocolate Fest, the Word Spring Writers Conference at Butte College, the Downtown Chico Thursday Night Market and more. These events should prove to be both an opportunity to increase public awareness of our group as well as an opportunity for our authors to gain name recognition and hone their skills interacting with their readers. It's going to be a great year.

Putting the stories on paper

Local novelist Ken Young brings virtues to life

By Eli Stillman
Estillman@paradisepost.com
@EliStillman13 on Twitter

When it came to parenting, Ken Young took a creative approach to teaching his daughter, Heather, about right from wrong. Instead of lectures, Young created a fantasy world through written stories that taught virtues and responsibility.

These stories involved giant man-eating frogs, an evil sorcerer and also a strong willed princess whose duty it was to protect her kingdom.

As his daughter grew older, the characters and plots in Young's stories grew as well. When Heather graduated from law school, she told her father that as a gift, she wanted him to finish the tale and put it all together. From the bedtime stories used to teach his daughter about life came Young's first novel, The King's Frog Hunter.

The local novelist has always enjoyed writing fiction, but it never was his main focus in life. While growing up in Southern California, Young was convinced by his friends to submit screenplays to Universal Studios. Though never having a full script accepted, parts of his work were used in the classic television show, The Six Million Dollar Man.

Young and his wife Cindy landed in Paradise in 1976 after visiting friends in the area and realizing they didn't want to leave. "I came here to figure out what I wanted to do with my life," Young said. While building homes as a contractor by day, and writing stories for his daughter by night, Young had found a balance for living but he wasn't being consistent with his writing. "Sometimes I would write everyday and sometimes I wouldn't touch it for three months," he said.

When Heather told him to put together the book, he found a whole new motivation and knew that he wanted to become a full-time writer. He published his novel in the fall of 2014 and has traveled around the West Coast promoting it since.

Today The King's Frog Hunter can be found on Amazon, in local libraries and even in Reno and Paradise novelist Ken Young is in the process of writing his second book of the the King's Frog Hunter trilogy.

San Jose bookstores. The positive response and questions about what happens next have inspired Young to make the tale into a trilogy and he is two-thirds of the way done with his second book

TOOLS FOR WRITERS

CHALLENGE OF THE MONTH

This month's challenge comes from Writer's Digest:

Get inspired on a field trip. Museums, gardens, movies and city skylines have all provided inspiration for reality TV challenges. Your assignment: Go on an outing to any artistic venue. Then, when you return home, write not about the inspiration you found on the field trip, but from the inspiration. If you want to go one step further, write while you're actually out and about. A change of scenery may be just the thing you need to get you thinking in new directions.

GREAT QUOTES

“If you have a dream, don't just sit there. Gather courage to believe that you can succeed and leave no stone unturned to make it a reality.”

– Roopleen

OPEN MIC NIGHT

Open Mic is Wednesday, January 11 at 7 pm, Chico Library Meeting Room, 1108 Sherman Av, Chico. Remember: Prose, Poetry, Short Stories are welcome; 10 minutes per read (unless the audience begs for more - at the closing of our readings); ALL are welcome!

NSW ANTHOLOGY

North State Writers would like to invite all members to submit their treasured short stories, poetry or memoirs in the North State Writers 2017 Anthology. It is an opportunity for unpublished writers to be published and published writers to add to their resume. As writers, we love to write, but it is even more rewarding to be recognized and appreciated. Let's celebrate our work.

The North State Writers 2017 Anthology will be published in the spring and available for purchase on Amazon Books.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

All submissions must be received by February 20, 2017. None will be accepted after this date.

You may submit maximum of 3 published or unpublished short stories and/or poems

Entry fee is $10 for each story submitted. The nonrefundable $10 fee pays for professional line readers who will read and judge each story and poem for quality in grammar and structure. Each entry will be read twice.

Entries will be read anonymously. Please submit a cover page for each emailed submission with your name, email, phone number and story/poem title (s). Each entry will be issued a number to preserve anonymity. Do not put your name on the work itself.

Please include on the cover sheet this statement; I, (name here) own and convey the rights to publish this/these works (title/titles) to Northstate Writers for one-time publishing in their 2017 Anthology.

MECHANICS OF SUBMISSION

Short story 750-5000 maximum words; 12pt Times Roman, 1.5 spacing

Poetry 30 lines or fewer; 12pt Times Roman, 1.5 spacing

Works that are proselytizing, libelous or gratuitous vulgarity/obscenity will not be considered.

Works will be accepted for entry upon receipt of payment. Please pay at the meetings.

Email your submissions to: chaseca310@gmail.com.

BOOK REVIEWS

NSW FEATURED BOOKS OF THE MONTH: North State Writers members and friends are getting together to promote our authors and their books online. Each month, one or more books written by NSW member(s) will be highlighted as our featured selection(s).

As an NSW member or friend, you can get these books as a free download from Amazon. As part of our promotional contest, when you give a short, honest review of the book online at Amazon, Barnes & Noble and/or Good Reads you are entered in our contest to win great prizes. Each review that you leave online equals 1 entry into the Book Promo Contest Drawing at the last NSW meeting of the year in December. The more reviews you leave, the more chances you have to win prizes. There will also be a Grand Prize for the reader with the most reviews posted during 2017.

(Reviews must be posted during the featured month to qualify. You don't need to have a Kindle to read the books – they can be read on just about any electronic device. If you're new to leaving reviews online, detailed directions will be included in an upcoming email.)

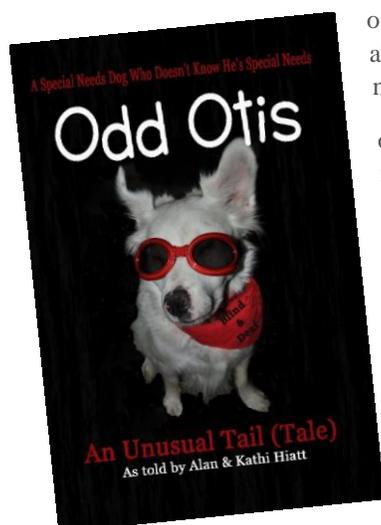

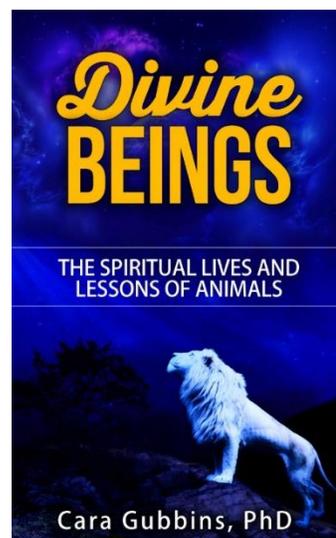

FEBRUARY FEATURED BOOKS: These great North State Writers Featured Books will be available for free download on February 1-5, 2017

o Divine Beings by Dr. Cara Gubbins. One of the finest spiritual scientists exploring our world today takes us on a dramatic, inspiring, revelatory journey into the inner world of animals. (Non-fiction)

o Odd Otis by Alan and Kathi Hiatt. An unusual tail (tale) about a special needs dog who doesn't know he's special needs. (Non-fiction)

o Jump by Cathy Chase. Jump is an adventure in a mysterious world run by dangerous minders. (Fiction)

EACH REVIEW COUNTS! Help us reach our goal of 50 NEW REVIEWS for each featured book this month.
