JUST WONDERING

By Steve Bakke  April 4, 2019

I've been wondering:

- Given the traditional deep allegiance of American Jewish voters to the Democrat party, I found it surprising Nancy Pelosi couldn't manage to deliver Democrat votes supporting a resolution condemning, specifically by name, anti-Semitism. Is Rep. Ilhan Omar's influence that significant so soon?
- Given the multiple states passing, or attempting to pass, legislation permitting full term abortion, it's no surprise U.S. House Republicans are trying to support legislation protecting babies born after an unsuccessful abortion. When, in the very recent history, did support for such logical legislation disappear?
- Speaker Pelosi's "Equality Act" would adding "gender identity" as a protected class. The outcome isn't net known as to the outcome of the current investigations and debates occurring on campus, in legislatures, among medical groups, and in homes and hearts. Aren't we jumping the gun a bit as to how this issue should be addressed in Federal legislation? Shouldn't we understand the issue a whole lot more first?
- There's serious support in some corners of the Democrat establishment for reducing the voting age to 16 in Federal elections. Will that proposal go hand-in-hand with mandatory old-fashioned courses in civics and our form of government?

Just wondering.
