FORT MEADE — It was an amazing turnout, said Jenny Heidtmann, the executive director of The Orpheum Theatre & Academy of Performing Arts.

“Thank you, everyone. I’m so surprised at the turnout,” said Heidtmann. She was talking about the turnout for the “Grand Old Orphy,” a barbecue fundraiser that was held Saturday, April 22 at the Allen Ranch in Fort Meade. She would add another thought later in the evening. “We had twice as many as expected.”

While the line was long for getting one’s meal from the food bus, it didn’t appear to bother people as the patiently waited in a line that never seemed to grow smaller. That may have been because they were entertained by a number of musical acts, including a bluegrass band from Union Academy, the Back Porch Singers, the Sentimental Journeymen (who sang acapello barber shop quartet-style), and country band Red Hot Rooster; even Heidtmann performed.

During one of the breaks between musical acts, Heidtmann told about the Orpheum Theatre, as well as how her love of music and the performing arts was fostered and developed. She was fortunate she had mentors who encouraged her pursuit of a musical career. But she reserved her most heartfelt moment for the future, working with young children where she, now, will be the mentor.

“It’s an incredible blessing, working and watching the young people,” she said.

Brock Lovering, 8, watches as his mother, Angela Lovering, looks over the raffle items. Although now living in Lakeland, Angela Lovering is originally from Bartow and learned about the Grand Old Orphy BBQ fundraiser going online, she said.
