BENEFITS OF POLYUREA COATINGS

Unlike epoxy, a polyurea coating can be applied in temperatures as low as -30°F to as high as 140°F. That means you don’t have to wait till spring or summer to coat your garage floor if you live in a colder climate.

Typical polyurea floor coatings are applied in just two coats; the first being both the primer and color coat and the second being the clear coat, with color vinyl flakes between them. Because of their fast cure rates, a complete flooring system can be installed in one day and returned to service the next.

This means that you won’t have to do without your garage for 3-5 days like you would for a full epoxy system.

There are many other benefits to a polyurea floor coating as well. These include:

- 100% U.V. stability. They will never yellow.
- Crystal clear finish that won’t blush from moisture in the concrete.
- Similar high abrasion and scratch resistance to polyurethane.
- High tolerance to heat meaning that hot tire pick up is a non-issue.
- High film build-up that can be controlled by the applicator.
- High gloss finish
- High solids content with little to no VOC’s in most applications.
- High stain and chemical resistance.
- Good flexibility for higher impact resistance.
- Excellent wetting characteristics allowing for good penetration into the concrete for a strong bond.
- Decreased chance of bubbles from outgassing due to the faster cure rate.
