

Sarah Kline, Principal, has over two decades of experience in transportation policy, with service in the public, private, and nonprofit sectors. She currently runs SK Solutions LLC, an independent consulting firm based in Fairfax, Virginia. She has authored numerous reports and articles on transportation and infrastructure topics including urban and rural mobility, transit-oriented development, innovative finance, and federal laws and regulations. She has also provided technical assistance and strategic advice to organizations and communities exploring mobility solutions.

Prior to founding SK Solutions, Kline served as Policy Director for two national nonprofit organizations, Transportation for America and Reconnecting America. She has also served as Director of Policy and Government Relations at the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA). She spent eight years as Counsel with the United States Senate Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, where she negotiated provisions of the 2005 transportation law, SAFETEA-LU. She holds a B.A. from Harvard University and a J.D. from Stanford Law School, and was a 2010 recipient of Mass Transit Magazine's Top 40 under 40 Award.