

Confidence and Artistry

WITH MADISON BOOTH

OVERCOMING PERFORMANCE ANXIETY

Discover your inner creative artist in performance without fear or anxiety.

*Madison Booth guides
students through successful performance techniques using strategies that explore sensations, emotions,
and thoughts.*

SATURDAY, DEC 12, 2020

2-3PM

VIA ZOOM

SIGN-UP: BARRO.FLUTE@GMAIL.COM

HOSTED BY

FLUTE STUDIO OF AMANDA BARRO

Madison Booth is a flutist, music educator, and graduate student at the University of Illinois studying Flute Performance and Literature, M.M. Originally from the Treasure Valley, Madison graduated from Boise State University in May 2020 in degrees in Music Education, B.M. and Flute Performance, B.M.

While at Boise State, she performed with the Symphonic Winds as Principal Flute, and with the Symphony Orchestra on both flute and piccolo. Now at the University of Illinois, she plays with the Wind Symphony. As a soloist, Madison has competed in many regional and national competitions receiving First Place at the Montana Young Artist Competition and an alternate position for the National Flute Association Masterclass Performers Competition. In addition, she was a guest concerto soloist with the Treasure Valley Symphony in 2018.

She maintains an active flute studio, performance, and adjudicating schedule. Madison is passionate about giving everyone the opportunity to participate in and enjoy music. In her free time, she enjoys reading, doing yoga, hiking and playing with her yellow Labrador, Koda.