

Creating A Culture of Excellence!

Presented by Harry Paul

This presentation shows you how to build a culture where everyone has passion and understanding for what they are doing. Continuously building the skills necessary to get the job done and remain competitive. Effectively communicating roles and responsibilities without confusion. Having the flexibility to do things differently in the ever-changing competitive business environment we all dwell in and taking ownership for the productivity and profitability of the organization. Doing all this with a great attitude, having fun, being present with people and creating unique customer experiences.

Presented in a fun, interactive and informative style, Harry Paul shows you and your organization how to banish average forever and move continually towards excellence. Here is some of what you and your people will learn from this presentation.

- Understanding the four tenets of achieving excellence and use them to banish average in your professional and personal lives forever.
- Gain more passion for what you are doing, being flexible to changing circumstances and reacting as they arise, communicating roles and goals more effectively without obfuscation and taking ownership and responsibility for what you are doing even if it's not part of your job description.
- Using fun and play as part of the work process to bring more energy and enthusiasm to work and to help increase productivity.
- Understanding the importance of living the vision, mission and values of the organization and making them relevant every day.
- Creating unique customer experiences that cannot be duplicated by the competition.

Available as a keynote.

Inquire about longer programs.

Based in part on the book Who Kidnapped Excellence?

