Mr. Martinez has been creating art professionally since 1995 when he started taking art classes at a local Arts and Education program called Working Classroom Inc. After taking a few art classes he worked on his first public mural and started working for the program. He took a variety of art classes with Professional, established art instructors from around the US. Working with WCI a few years, he moved up in position to visual arts program coordinator and continued to develop, learn about Art, Business, Non-Profits, and community from the guest artists.

Within 10 years working with WCI, Mr. Martinez worked on 10+ Public Murals, has taken 31 different Art classes, taught art, and created works in a variety of mediums and techniques. After WCI he continued to work for another art business called G n N designs where he learned and worked on more painting techniques, public art jobs, private murals and 3-D styrofoam carvings.

With many years of experience using a variety of mediums, Michael has learned to create works that are visually different from one another and continues to create art that incorporates different techniques and mediums that he has learned from artistic mentors.
