Minute Summary – Thanksgiving Meals

by Rix Quinn

So, how do you plan to spend your big November turkey holiday?

On Thanksgiving Weekend, millions of us sit down to a home-cooked holiday dinner, a whipped cream dessert, then haul ourselves to the den for a football feast.

A true fan can view over dozens of contests that weekend...even more if he eats on a TV tray. After games, that same middle-aged fanatic can race into the yard to play football with guys half his age, trip over his dog, fall into a tree, then lie prone for up to four minutes. (My wife timed this when it happened to me.)

Football first appeared on radio in the 1920's, but fans got bored watching a wooden box. So, some genius developed a way to transmit pictures over telephone lines, and created a TV screen roughly the size of a gnat's pimple...way too small for football.

In the 1950's, technology made larger screens possible, but they broadcast in black-and-white only. The confused fans couldn't tell if their team was the one wearing black shirts and white helmets, or white shirts and black helmets. It got even more complicated when they fell on the gray grass.

But soon, color cameras brought vivid stadium scenes into our homes. We could then view green turf, the homecoming queen's red roses, and – on cold days – blue cheerleaders.
