

Paul Revere's Raiders to Play Sandwich Opera House

Sandwich, IL - The Sandwich Opera House is pleased to announce a recent addition to their line-up. Paul Revere's Raiders will be performing for one night on Friday, November 10 at 8 pm.

Paul Revere organized the Raiders in 1958 and over the years perfected their slick, fast-paced show that has entertained audiences all over the world. The act features Revere's hand-picked band of well-respected musicians. After decades of performing and long before Revere's passing in 2014, he decided to get off the road and hand over his legendary three-cornered hat to The Raiders.

Nowadays the band performs as Paul Revere's Raiders and includes long-time band members (for over 40 years), Doug Heath, Ron Foos and Danny Krause.

Joining the show is Paul Revere's son, Jamie Revere, Darren Dowler who was a 10 year member of the Lettermen and Tommy Scheckel, the drummer, who was a member of The Buckingham's for 27 years.

Many will remember the Paul Revere and The Raiders favorites like "Just Like Me", "Kicks", "Hungry" and "Louie Louie".

Tickets for this performance will range $45-50 and will include a performance from opening act Gerry Grossman who is known as The Human Jukebox. Tickets may be purchased online at www.sandwichoperahouse.org, by calling 815-786-2555 or at the Opera House box office, 140 E. Railroad Street in Sandwich. Office hours are Monday through Friday from 11 am until 3:30 p.m.
