The island's Arikok National of established hiking trails which run past Aruba's most important natural resources and historic landmarks.

The Butterfly Farm remains one of Aruba's most unique attractions, showcasing butterflies from around the world. In season, butterflies emerging from cocoons.

The Aruba Ostrich Farm is one of the most unique attractions

Mega Millions

After dropping $40 into a Megabucks machine at Sunset Station and playing for two minutes, a player from Arizona lined up the three Megabucks symbols on a Triple Red Hot Sevens slot machine to take down the jackpot of $13,154,723.

Oklahoma Casino Count

Oklahoma now has the third most casinos in the U.S. with 141, trailing only Nevada and California. This includes the giant WinStar Casino in Thackerville near the Texas border, that advertises itself as the world's largest casino with 600,000 square feet of floor space.

Wire Act in Court

One judge and upwards of twenty attorneys met in a courtroom in New Hampshire in April to begin the legal wrangling over the U.S.
Justice Department opinion that reversed a 2011 memorandum that the 1961 Wire Act applied only to sports betting, paving the way for Internet and interstate gambling in the United States.
Assistant U.S. attorneys and lawyers representing groups such as the Coalition To Stop Internet Gambling and the National Association of Convenience Stores faced off against counterparts representing the states of Michigan, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, siding with New Hampshire, which initiated the lawsuit against the federal government. The District Court judge declared that the Wire Act is a grammatical mess; denied the government's move to dismiss the case, which will proceed; announced that the issues are “the most challenging he has seen in his 26 years on the federal bench,” and said that he expects that the case will ultimately be decided by the Supreme Court.

West Virginia Approves Online Casinos

West Virginia has become the fifth state to legalize online casinos or poker (both were approved there), joining Nevada, New Jersey, Delaware, and Pennsylvania.
Online sports betting is already underway in West Virginia, but casino and poker won't begin until prospective operators—likely the state's existing bricks-and-mortar casinos—have been issued online licenses.

Bingo Halls Raided

The battle over Bingo in Alabama rages on. In the latest salvo, authorities went after four Bingo halls in Jefferson County and arrested close to 20 people. Officials from the Alabama Attorney General’s Office raided the Spin It and Win It Charity Bingo hall in Graysville, Super Highway Bingo in Brighton, Fun-N-Games Arcade in Brighton and Southwind Bingo in Midfield. State officials raided the halls as part of ongoing disagreements between Alabama Attorney General Steve Marshall and Jefferson County Sheriff Mark Pettway on the issue.

Prime Minister Dodges Reporters for Bingo Event

Reporters and the outlets they work for were plenty upset when handlers for Australian Prime Minister Scott Morrison gave journalists the night off during a stop on his re-election campaign. Only afterward did they find out that they missed covering the prime minister’s visit to a veterans club in Sydney where he sat in as a caller during a Bingo session. As a result of “Bingo-gate,” some media bosses questioned whether the high cost of having reporters on the campaign trail is worth the effort, especially if handlers plan to pick and choose the events where the press are allowed, such as in this case at the Bingo hall, where they apparently worried Morrison might do something to create bad press.

New Indian Nation Bingo Opens

The Sac and Fox Nation of Missouri in Kansas and Nebraska recently celebrated the grand opening of a new Bingo hall at Sac & Fox Casino in Powhattan, Kansas, with a ribbon cutting ceremony and other festivities. The decision to bring Bingo to the casino was made with the goal of attracting a wider range of customers. The new, 6,000-sq.-ft. complex includes an enclosed Silver Fox Showroom with 600 seats and a 240-seat Bingo hall located adjacent to it. Construction began in January 2019 and was completed within three months.

Fundraiser Draws Players from Three States

Every spring for the past 32 years, Burns and Carpenter elementary schools in Wyoming have held a major Bingo fundraiser to collect much-needed financial support for school activities and programs. The event has grown so big that last year more than 650 people from Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming attended. Players are served walking tacos and compete in Bingo games, raffles and a silent auction. Prizes range from a drone and an air hockey table to a Fitbit, a crossbow and an Amazon Echo.

Lucky Days: 1 - 11
Lucky Numbers: 44 - 56

Dear Dream Catcher

Does Dream Dog Have Something to Say?

Dear Dream Catcher,
I’m always dreaming about my dog even though my dog (Ginger) died several years ago. In these dreams Ginger is unleashed and by my side and it seems like she is talking to me. But what she is saying I don’t understand, but it doesn’t matter because the most comforting thing is that we are reunited. Are these reoccurring dreams simply because I miss her or is something more happening, is she trying to communicate something important to me that I can’t comprehend? What do the dreams mean? — Sherri M., Ashland, OR

Dear Sherri,
Of course, on a conscious level, it makes perfect sense that you would be dreaming about your favorite dog. You miss Ginger and so there are incessant dreams about her. Keep this in mind: Whenever dreams reoccur, no matter the dream’s theme or content, there are powerful forces at work that our unconscious is attempting to convey. And there is nothing like repetition to bring home the dream’s particular message. For many of us, the relationship we have with our pets is often stronger and more binding than the relationship we have with friends or family members. This is directly related to the innocent nature of animals. It is much easier to let the heart open fully to a guileless animal than to the complex nature of human beings. What interests me in your dreams about Ginger are the efforts being made to establish a language between the two of you. I associate language with one of the special qualities that make human beings human, so it might be that Ginger is attempting to instill in you a readiness to accept how grief touches the life of all humans, that none of us ever escape the pain associated with grief, as life is always filled with loss on different levels—both animal and human. And along with loss comes renewal, rebirth and perhaps the seed thought that one might even find a new animal companion to accompany her on this mysterious journey we call life. — DC

Dear Dream Catcher,
I am a Pisces and I noticed that as soon as Jupiter entered the sign Sagittarius [in November of 2018] my dreams took on a much more energized and optimistic feeling. Not only were my dreams more hopeful but they were actually more vivid and colorful.

I had never thought about this before—that dreams could be neutral or dreams could happen in color. I’m wondering if astrology influences our dream life? And also I wonder what my dreams will be like when Jupiter enters Capricorn at the end of 2019? — Karen C. Long Beach, CA

Dear Karen

Yes, absolutely! In my many years of working with clients and their dreams there are obvious correspondences between dream content and planetary movements. If we think of the birth horoscope as a canvas (the kind an artist paints on) you can easily imagine the signs and the planets as mixtures of colors and textures atop the canvas. Because Jupiter is one of the planets that has resonance with the sign Pisces it is not surprising to me that you would have noticed a significant change when Jupiter exited the emotionally intense sign of Scorpio. Because Jupiter also rules Sagittarius there would be a doubling up of jovial vibrations in your life; in other words, that sense of optimism and inspiration would influence your dream world. For most of us it is our dream world that shows the first signs of events transforming in our waking world. I’d bet that as Jupiter enters Capricorn you’ll begin to see your dreams change thematically again, where the imagery will be more earthbound and involve acts of discipline and persistence; actions that help all of your Piscean dreams come true. — DC

Guy's Turn

By Guy Williams

“Steamed” Follows Up on Splitting Wins

Hi Guy,
This is “Steamed in Northern California.” I sent you an email earlier this year about me and my cousin agreeing to split our Bingo winnings, which only lasted until she won a large jackpot ($850). When that happened, instead of sharing it, she gave me half ($50) of a smaller previous prize I’d won and split with her and told me she didn’t want to share our Bingo winnings anymore. She kept the entire $850 for herself.
This stunt really made me mad, and I told her so while we were still sitting at Bingo. I said it was obvious she did this to keep the big jackpot, and to me this was greedy and selfish. At the time I also said that I had no problem not sharing our Bingo winnings anymore, but that she shouldn’t have waited until there was a big prize to cheat me out of.
All she said in return was that she was “sorry I felt that way” and behaved as if I was the one making a big deal about the money and not her—which is what made me decide to write to you.
I very much appreciate that you published my story and shared your advice, and I want to thank all the people who wrote in with their comments. It was interesting to see that I was not the only one who has been burned by a “splitting our winnings” arrangement.

Having never seen someone write in with an update, I thought I would take a moment and tell you what has happened since.
My cousin and I didn’t speak for a while. She finally phoned me after she saw my letter in your column and asked if I had sent it. When I told her I had, she called me mentally ill and hung up.
The next thing I know, I’m hearing from other relatives and friends, some who say I was perfectly right to be angry and to have sent you the email, and others who think I am wrong for airing a family quarrel in public.
Oddly, when I ask the people who tell me I was wrong about the letter what they think of her keeping the money, most all of them say the same thing: That’s not the issue; the issue is that I went public with my complaint.
Cheating a family member out of $400+ dollars isn’t an issue? Come on...
On the bright side, I rarely think about it anymore (even though this email makes it seem otherwise!). What’s done is done and I’m moving on.
Your readers are right...NEVER split your winnings with family or friends. You may think you know them, but until you’ve actually seen your Bingo “buddy” with a big win and how they act when it’s in their sweaty little hand, you have no idea. — Over It in Northern California
Hi Over It,
You’ are correct—I don’t believe I’ve ever received a follow-up letter from a writer. (And I’ve asked a few to let me know how a particular situation worked out.) Maybe you’ll start a trend!

It’s a shame that your issue with your cousin has grown into a whole family thing, but it’s a risk you take when you “go public” by writing to a columnist.
Your cousin has had multiple opportunities to make things right, but apparently has chosen to leave things as they stand...and even rally a few family members to take her side. So, I guess that is that.
It’s good that you decided to get “over it” and move past the conflict. Chalk it up as a lesson learned, and Happy Future Bingoing! —Guy

A Flu Shot Could Save Your Life

Some of us just don’t want to get a flu shot every year. It’s too much trouble to get an appointment, or we just don’t like needles — or maybe we figure that we’ll just tough it out for a week if we do get the flu. After all, it’s not going to kill us, right?

A researcher at the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Minneapolis has come up with a strong reason to get an annual flu shot: You could have a heart attack if you don’t.

After studying 450,000 medical records of four flu seasons, the VA researcher and his colleagues concluded that while the number of flu cases might go up only slightly (5%) in a given month, the number of heart-related problems soars (24%) during that same period. They coordinated with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention for flu stats, and concentrated on four specific communities in Maryland, North Carolina, Mississippi and Minnesota. While a correlation between the flu and heart failure has long been suspected, this large study nails it with real numbers.

If you’re already a heart patient, don’t depend on the doctors to send you a note about getting your flu shot. Get one. If you’re otherwise healthy, take responsibility for getting your shot, and make sure others around you get it too, especially children. You can find the shots everywhere, including the local pharmacy and chain grocery stores.
While the 2018-2019 flu season is practically over, get started early for the next round by paging through your calendar to September and October and making a note to get a flu shot then.
Consider this: As of March, there were 30,000 flu-related deaths and 300,000 flu-related hospitalizations.

Paw’s Corner

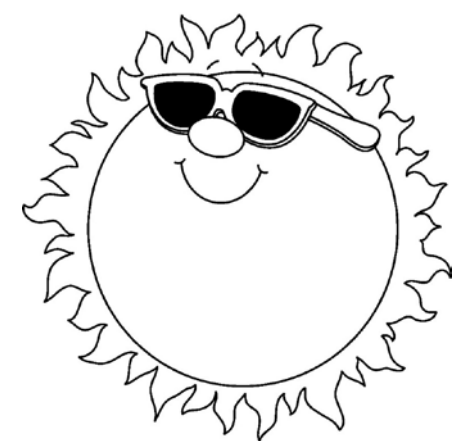

G: I live in a town with no dog parks and very few sidewalks, other than in the town center and a few subdivisions. When I take my dog “Greta” outside in the morning I get dirty looks from the neighbors, even though I pick up after her. I live in an apartment with no yard, so I have to drive into the city to find an off-leash dog park so Greta can run. I love my town and don’t want to move, but I’m getting tired of this. Is there anything I can do?

A: It can be frustrating to have to go so far to give Greta some recreation time. Here are a few ideas to try:

- Find like-minded dog owners by searching for or creating a Meetup.com group in your town, and get together to talk about concerns they have with walking their dogs.
- Contact city hall to find out if they have considered a dog park, or designating a park as dog-friendly. If so, ask how you can be a part of the process. If not, look into starting a community dog park. The AKC has some helpful tips on how to do this.

- Talk to your neighbors and ask if they have concerns about dogs.
 - Commit to other solutions that may help make your town more dog-friendly: remind other dog owners to pick up droppings, post flyers that explain how to approach a strange dog, and of course, keep Greta on a leash where required.
- Unfortunately, these tips put much of the onus on the dog owners. But that may be the best place to start. Good luck.

2020 Census Jobs Ideal for Retirees

Dear Savvy Senior,
The U.S. Census Bureau is in the process of recruiting thousands of workers for temporary jobs to help collect valuable data for the 2020 Census, and retirees are ideal candidates. Can you write a column to get the word out? Thanks for your help! — Census Recruiter

Dear Recruiter,
I'm happy to oblige, and I agree. This once-a-decade job opportunity is a great fit for retirees that have some free time on their hands who wouldn't mind earning some extra income while helping the community.

Attention Retirees!
The United States Census Bureau is currently in the process of recruiting over 500,000 temporary workers to help carry out the upcoming 2020 Census national head count of every person living in the U.S. The U.S Census helps determines each state's representation in Congress, how funds are spent for schools, hospitals, roads, and provides information to guide many decisions made by government agencies, private businesses and institutions.

Jobs within the census vary from working in the field canvassing, updating maps, doing follow up interviews with citizens in your community, or working in the office as a clerk doing administrative tasks or office operation supervisor, who oversees the field staff.

Some jobs will begin this summer, but the majority of positions will begin in late April 2020 and last a month or two.

These temporary part-time positions are located in every county throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. Some positions require evening and/or weekend shifts because you must be available to interview members of the public when they're at home. And all positions require several days of online and classroom training. The pay ranges between $13.50 and $30 per hour depending on position and location. To find the pay rates in your area, see 2020census.gov/en/jobs/locations.html.

Job Qualifications
To be able to work for the 2020 census you must be:

- Be at least 18 years old.
- Have a valid Social Security number.
- Be a U.S. citizen.

- Have a valid email address.
- Complete an application and answer assessment questions.
- Be registered with the Selective Service System or have a qualifying exemption, if you are a male born after Dec. 31, 1959.
- Pass a Census-performed criminal background check and a review of criminal records, including fingerprinting.
- Commit to completing training.
- Be available to work flexible hours, which can include days, evenings, and/or weekends.

In addition, most census jobs require employees to have access to a vehicle and a valid driver's license, unless public transportation is readily available. And have access to a computer with internet and an email account to complete training.

How to Apply
The first step is to complete the online job application at 2020census.gov/en/jobs. The process takes about 30 minutes and will include some assessment questions about your education, work, and other experience. If you're a veteran who would like to claim veterans' preference, which provides preference over nonveteran applicants, you'll need supporting documentation. After you apply, an interviewer will reach out to potential hires to conduct a phone interview, but not all applicants will be interviewed. Job offers are made verbally, but candidates will also receive a letter by email.

Lotto Millionaire To Spoil Grandkids

Oxford, North Carolina, granddad Theodore Duncan is planning to retire, purchase his dream house, and spoil his 12 grandchildren after winning a $10 million lottery prize. Duncan, a 52-year-old machine mechanic, bought a $10,000,000 Colossal Cash scratch-off ticket on his way to a landfill to dump trash. When he scratched off the numbers in his truck, he said he couldn't believe what he saw. "When I saw the money symbol, I knew I won something," Duncan said. "When I scratched off the prize, I couldn't believe it. I was so shocked I couldn't drive. I had to call my brother to come get me." Duncan chose a lump sum prize of $4,245,009 after withholdings. In addition to spoiling his grandkids, Duncan plans to donate $100,000 to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Mass. Lotto Upgrade

The Massachusetts Lottery got a much-needed tech boost this year, with the replacement of its IT system, which was more than 20 years old. The new system connects more than 7,500 lottery terminals that were rolled out last year. Officials say the IT upgrade will ensure the stability of the system, which brings in approximately $1 billion in profits to cities and towns each fiscal year. The expanded digital footprint also positions the lottery to engage with customers on other platforms, such as online lottery, should the state approve it. The new IT system was the final step in a multi-year project that cost more than $50 million.

Lucky for Life

A Michigan man will be getting $25,000 a year for life after rescuing his lotto ticket from the garbage. Jeff Heinig of Harrison, Michigan, rescued his Lucky for Life ticket from the trash after he initially tossed it thinking it was worthless. He said he threw the ticket away after he got his dates mixed up and checked the website before the drawing took place. "I was back on the website and the Lucky For Life numbers caught my eye," he said. "They were the numbers I always play, and that's when it hit me that I had checked my ticket before the drawing had happened. I searched high and low for the ticket but couldn't find it anywhere until I went rifling through the trash."

Video Poker Policies

Lately, it seems that some casinos are changing their policy toward video poker players, and this often is not good news for them. I'll give you a few examples so you will be aware of these revised casino policies.

A Mississippi casino recently posted the following banner on their web site: "9/6 VIDEO POKER MACHINES...36 NOW AVAILABLE." I got excited and paid the casino a visit to see for myself. Sure enough, I found 36 slant-top video poker machines that had 9/6 Jacks or Better games on them. However, as I glanced over the entire pay table, I noticed something that made me sick to my stomach; namely, they had shorted the max-coin royal flush payout from 4,000 coins to only 2,500 coins at all denominations (25 cents, 50 cents, and dollar).

This reduction in the payoff for the royal flush decreases the Expected Value from 99.54% to 98.39%. Now, you might think a reduction in ER of 1.15% is not a big deal, but for serious players, trust me, it is. I had a short meeting with the casino's slot manager to voice my displeasure over their shorted royal flush payout. Casino management revisited this issue and subsequently changed the payout to 4,000 coins on their quarter denomination 9/6 Jacks or Better machines (at 50 cents and dollar denomination, the payout is still 2,500 coins). The point is this: you need to be diligent and check the entire video poker pay table to be sure none of the payouts have been shorted.

Many casinos have changed how they determine a player's monthly mailer (specifically, the amount of bounce back cash, free play, and other comps in the mailers). The amount of perks that players got in their monthly mailers used to be based on either their coin in over a period of time or their daily average coin in. Nowadays, casinos are basing a player's mailer on theoretical (or "theo"), meaning how much average profit the casino expects to earn from a player based on the specific machine they play. So video poker players that play, say 9/6 Jacks or Better, will get much less bounce back free play and comps in their mailers compared to a player who plays a video poker game with a worse pay schedule.

The following policy change blows my mind. Some casinos factor in a player's win/loss history in their equation that determines how much a player will get in their mailers. Get lucky and hit a royal flush (or a jackpot on a slot machine) and the amount of bounce back and comps in your mailers will dramatically decrease.

Some casinos decrease the rewards a player receives for playing a full pay video poker machine. Instead of having to wager, say 1,000 coins, to get a point on their slot card, signage on the machine will state that you need to wager 4,000 coins for a point (thus it takes more coin in to get a point). Several casinos have even gone so far as to post signage on their full pay video poker machines that state when you play this machine you will get zero points and you won't be eligible for any promotions. (No, I'm not kidding...absolutely no incentives for a player.)

Many casinos actively promote bonus point promotions to video poker and slot players. Unfortunately, when some video poker players took the casino up on their offer while playing full-play video poker games, their mailers were discontinued.

So what should a smart video poker do if their favorite casino changes their policy toward video poker players for the worse? You have two choices: voice your displeasure with management, making sure they know you will be playing there a lot less, or find another casino that will offer you a better deal for your play.

Poker Talk

Knowing When and Why to Bet Isn’t Always Clear

By Chad Holloway

The 2019 U.S. Poker Open, a series of 10 high-stakes tournaments, wrapped up in Las Vegas earlier this year. During the penultimate tournament of the series, a $50,000 no-limit hold ‘em event, an interesting hand took place with four players remaining. It took place in Level 19 (blinds of 20,000-40,000 with an ante of 40,000), when Alex Foxen, the 2018 Global Poker Index Player of the Year, raised the button to 85,000 holding Kc 10c. Ryan Riess, who won the 2013 World Series of Poker Main Event, was sitting with just 495,000 in the big blind and opted to call with Qh 10s. Watching the hand play out, I wasn’t surprised to see Riess call to see a flop. After all, Q-10 is more than enough to defend from the big blind, especially against a button raise where Foxen could have held any two cards. That said, I wouldn’t have been surprised to see Riess shove. Instead, he took the conservative route and saw a flop of 3h Qd As. Riess paired his queen and checked it to Foxen, who continued for just 50,000. This was another interesting spot for Riess, as his hand was too strong to fold. That meant he could either call or check-raise. If he did the former, it would likely have to be for all his chips if he hoped to scare off Foxen. Of course, Riess didn’t know Foxen’s holdings. Did he have an ace on the button? Maybe a queen with a better kicker? It was a tricky spot, so Riess did what many players do in this sort of situation - he just called in order to get more information on a later street. After the dealer burned and turned the 7d, Riess checked for a second time, and Foxen kept the pressure on with a bet of 100,000. Riess only had 355,000 behind and again was put to a tough decision. Was Foxen bleeding him with an ace? As the saying goes, “In for a penny, in for a pound.” Riess called once again, and the Kd completed the board on the river. Foxen got lucky to take the lead, and he checked. Why not bet? Because it was a situation where he was only going to get called by a hand that beat him - in this case an ace. Why bet and give Riess more chips if he did have an ace? If Riess had a queen (which he did), he probably wouldn’t call a bet anyway. So, betting was high risk, no reward. There was no sense in Riess betting at this point either. Like his opponent, he would only get called by better hands. So, check-check it went, and Foxen claimed the pot. As poker fate would have it, Foxen saw his big stack disappear and busted out in fourth place for $328,000, while Riess spun up his short stack and finished in second place for $492,000.

Hotel Apache Now Taking Reservations

The Hotel Apache opened in 1929 and was originally owned by a cement contractor for Hoover Dam. It was the first Las Vegas hotel to have air-conditioning in the lobby, protected by an air curtain at the entrance. It was also the first with an elevator and a carpeted casino. Eventually acquired by Benny Binion, it has been closed for a number of years, but 80 rooms just reopened as a boutique hotel-within-a-hotel. Binion’s is touting it as downtown’s “Historic Haunted Hotel” and the remodeled rooms are going for $99 weekdays and $199 weekends.

Curry for Friends who Love Curry

Dear Annie,
I have two very good friends who are coming for a visit this summer. They love recipes with curry. Can you suggest an entree made with curry? Thanks for all your wonderful recipes. — Sasha Ann from New York

Dear Sasha Ann,
I have a son who loves curry, too. Here's one of his favorite recipes. There are a lot of ingredients, but the recipe is worth the effort. Double this recipe if you are serving more than four people. Enjoy! — Annie

CURRIED CHICKEN AND APPLES
1 ½ pounds skinless, boneless chicken breast and thighs
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 medium onions, chopped
2 large cloves garlic, minced
4 large tart apples (Granny Smith), peeled, cored and cut in eights
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 teaspoon ground coriander
¼ teaspoon turmeric
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon cloves
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1/8 teaspoon cardamom
salt, to taste
pepper, to taste
¼ teaspoon hot red pepper flakes
2 cups reduced sodium chicken stock or broth
2 tablespoons corn starch
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 cup nonfat plain yogurt

Cut the chicken on the diagonal into ½ inch strips. In a nonstick pan, brown the chicken strips on both sides in hot oil. Remove and set aside. Add the onions to the pan and sauté, cooking until they begin to brown and soften. Add the garlic and cook for 30 seconds. Reduce the heat to medium and add the apples, all the spices, and the salt, pepper and hot pepper flakes. Return the chicken to the pot, cover, and cook over low heat until the apples begin to soften, just a few minutes.
Mix a little of the stock with the cornstarch to make a smooth paste and stir the paste into the remaining chicken stock. When the chicken is almost cooked, add the cornstarch mixture and cook over a low heat, stirring, until the mixture thickens a little. Add the lime juice. Refrigerate, if desired.

To serve, let the chicken return to room temperature and reheat very slowly over low heat or in the microwave. Serve over rice, with yogurt on the side. Yield: 4 servings. Double this recipe if you are serving more than four people.

Now Here's a Tip!

- If you're forgetful, experts say to "speak up" when completing a task. Not sure you turned off the oven? When you take the pan out, say, "I'm shutting off the oven!" You're more likely to remember if you've given yourself a verbal reminder.
- Lock your device! Just as you wouldn't leave your door unlocked, so too should you not leave your phone unlocked, particularly if you have applications on your smartphone which can be easily accessed. Lock it up, and be smart.
- "Cut the bitterness in a cup of coffee by adding a pinch of salt. Enhance the flavor of sweets with a pinch of salt. Salt is my secret weapon!" — F.L. in Alabama
- "When you need to change your password monthly, like for work, you might benefit from this motivational tip: Choose a phrase to focus on for the month. For example: "Listening does more than talking" can be translated to "listening>TALKIng" for a strong, but motivational password that you'll have to think about each time you log in." — T.B. in Florida
