

Dr. Stephanie G. Adams is 7th Dean of the Batten College of Engineering and Technology at Old Dominion University. She has held faculty and administrative positions at Virginia Tech, Virginia Commonwealth University and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She earned a BS in Mechanical Engineering with honors from North Carolina A&T State University, a Master of Engineering degree in Systems Engineering from the University of Virginia and her Ph.D. in Interdisciplinary Engineering from Texas A&M University. Her research interests include Faculty Development, Broadening Participation, International Collaborations, Team Effectiveness, Collaborative and Active Learning, and Quality Control and Management. In June 2018, Dr. Adams will be installed as the President – Elect of the American Society of Engineering Education (ASEE). She served as a Program Director in the Engineering Education and Centers Division of the National Science Foundation. In 2003 she received the CAREER award from the National Science Foundation and in 2013 she was named a Fellow of the ASEE.