

Sources and Suggested Reading: Violet Jessop

Titanic Survivor by Violet Jessop, ed. John Maxtone-Graham (1998). Few survivor stories match stewardess Violet Jessop's firsthand account of life aboard great ocean liners, including how she survived the sinkings of both the Titanic in 1912 and her sister ship Britannic in 1916.

Lost Liners by Robert D. Ballard and Rick Archbold, paintings by Ken Marschall (1997). Beautifully illustrated story of history great lost liners. Puts Titanic in the contest of the Lusitania, Britannic, Empress of Ireland, Andrea Dorea and others. Large and lavishly illustrated.

882¹/₂ Amazing Answers to Your Questions about Titanic by Hugh Brewster (1999). A fun book packed with facts and illustrations about the building, sinking, and rediscovery of the Titanic. A top-seller among Titanic books, aimed at a children's audience but fascinating for all ages.

Down With the Old Canoe: A Cultural History of the Titanic Disaster by Steven Biel (1996). A fascinating academic study of myths the disaster inspired, from blues songs to political speeches to Broadway musicals. Scholarly but also very entertaining.

A Night to Remember by Walter Lord (1955). Walter Lord's classic minute-by-minute account of the sinking of the Titanic remains the most riveting account of the collision and its aftermath. Based on extensive interviews.

Titanic: An Illustrated History by Don Lynch, paintings by Ken Marschall (1992). A magnificent book. Tells the full story of the Titanic, from her building and launch to the sinking and the recovery, created by today's leading Titanic historian and foremost Titanic painter.

HMHS Britannic: The Last Titan by Simon Mills (1992). A history of the Titanic's forgotten sister ship, which sank after hitting a German-laid mine during World War I.

www.lesliegoddard.info | L-Goddard@att.net