DIRECTOR'S NOTE

As a child I often found myself saying what in the world is wrong with Ronald Dahl? As an adult I often find myself shouting WHAT IN THE WORLD IS WRONG WITH RONALD DAHL?! The lens of his books often portray a dark and unsafe world where children are more often unsafe and unwanted than not. But my first time seeing James and the Giant Peach on stage, it was the first time I really fell in love with the story that I had been exposed to many times before. Something about the music and the interweaving of Ladahlord gave the story a stability that it had always lacked for me before and there with the magic of theatre, James finally felt safe. The story of our lonely orphan, James, who finds an unexpected family of Insects, in an even more unexpected place, is a gentle reminder of the importance of caring for one another. We were never meant to do it alone. While some of us hold the gentleness of Ladybug, some the optimism of Grasshopper, and others the strength of Spider and her web, it is the time, talent, and love we invest into our communities and those around us that can change the world, right before our eyes. Your children have worked so hard on this show. It is always such an honor to work with them. They are magic. Enjoy the show!
