

R. J. Davies also known as R. J. Davies Mornix was born in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario lived in Toronto for a few years, currently resides in the Sault. She has been writing since she was 8 years of age, (if you ask her mother she would say she was telling stories since she was 6) day dreaming, creating, developing characters, places and tales of woe. Attended Sault College, started out in Police Foundations and then graduated from Computer Engineering.

Professionally, portfolio consists of technical writing, ghost writing, and there are a couple of manuscripts sitting in potential slush piles at a couple of Canadian Publishing Houses at this very moment.

Constantly researching story ideas, conversation, and scenes in ratty notebooks, napkins and slips of torn coffee stained envelopes. Most favorite questions start off with "What if" ... what if this happens, what if that happens, what would it be like if this was real? Or what if that was real? She likes reading theoretical physics books, science fiction and hanging out with her son.

R J Davies

Formerly known as R. J. Davies Mornix

All rights reserved, do not copyright or alter without written permission is given.

