

South Carolina
Association for Middle Level Education
Strategic Plan

2018-2021

History of SC-AMLE

The South Carolina Middle School Association was organized in 1977 after a committee of middle level leaders worked for two years. Larry Bolchoz, Director of Middle Schools in Charleston County, chaired the committee whose task was to form a middle school association. A group of committed educators agreed to serve on the committee: Cecile Heizer, Greenville County; James Hallman, Lexington District 2; Christine Webb, Richland District 1; and Harold McCallum, York District 4. Bolchoz stated that the purpose of the committee was to form an association..."to enable us to meet together and share our mutual areas of effort, concern, and interest in the middle schools. In this way our own needs and those of our students would be more adequately met and served."

Larry Bolchoz served as the first president of SCMSA. In July, 1978 under the leadership of SCMSA President Mike Miller from Spartanburg District 6, an application was submitted for affiliation with the National Middle School Association. For over 30 years, SCMSA has provided professional development opportunities for educators across South Carolina. The goal of the association has been to provide a forum for educators to share in the conversation about middle schools and middle level education.

On July 1, 2014, the SCMSA officially changed its name to South Carolina Association for Middle Level Education. The change of National Middle School Association to Association for Middle Level Education prompted a realignment and rebranding of the organization. The name is more representative of the members of SCAMLE. Members include K-8 schools, 6-8 schools, 7-8 schools, 6-12 schools, 7-12 schools, colleges and universities, advocates, and pre service educators. Since 1977, the organization has had many talented educators serve as president. Each has provided leadership to advance the call of a focus on middle level education in South Carolina. In addition to strong elected leadership, the association has had talented individuals serve in a professional position. These include Phyllis Pendarvis who became the first part-time Executive Director of SCMSA. Phyllis served from 1999-2006. From 2006-present, Linda Allen has served as part-time Executive Director.

The SCMSA/SCAMLE leadership has remained strong throughout the association's 37 year history. Teachers and administrators have served the organization and provided a strong voice for middle level education across South Carolina. The SCAMLE is indebted to those who have willingly given their time to further the cause of middle level education.

As of 2018, Mrs. Linda Allen has retired as the Executive Director of SC-AMLE. Mrs. Tina Jamison has been selected as the Executive Director of SC-AMLE at this time.

Mission and Vision of SC-AMLE

The mission and vision of the South Carolina Association for Middle Level Education guide and drive the goals and plans for the organization. Each statement has been carefully crafted to best explain the goals of the organization.

Mission

The South Carolina Association for Middle Level Education will identify, promote and disseminate best practices in middle level education, while engaging all parties responsible for meeting the unique needs of the young adolescent.

Vision

The vision of the South Carolina Association for Middle Level Education, the leading proponent for the education of young adolescents, is to serve as an advocate for quality middle level education; promote public awareness and create support; and provide quality member services.

As an organization, We Believe:

- That the adolescent years are critical to the development of a student, academically, socially, developmentally, culturally, and emotionally.
- That all adolescent students deserve a first class experience in a school focused on their unique needs in preparation for college and career readiness.
- That all middle level educators in South Carolina should be respected as professionals.
- That as middle level educators, it is our professional obligation to honor and respond to the needs of middle level stakeholders.

Strategic Plan for SC-AMLE

During the summer of 2018, board members of SC-AMLE worked to craft a comprehensive strategic plan for the organization. Primary services and initiatives were determined based upon the jointly created belief statements/ideals listed above.

The activities and services are designed to encourage growth of the organization along with expanded opportunities for members.

Members of the Board of Directors for SC-AMLE have crafted a plan to reach and maintain a strong vision and mission. Each member has provided leadership in creating this strategic plan.
