

LETTER TO THE EDITOR RALLYING AGAINST LOW-INFORMATION WRITERS!

By Stephen L. Bakke  August 24, 2014

Here's what provoked me:

An absurd letter appeared that expressed one false liberal "talking point" after another. Obviously this writer had been misled and was willing to inflict others with this false information and rewritten history. I did the best I could to provide a few arguments given the limited space allowed for each submission.

Here's my response:

Rallying Against Low-Information Writers!

Re: "Obama doing his job" – August 24 – Graydon Shepard deals in misinformation by rewriting history with false declarations. Consider:

- "..... a significant number of Republicans say (Obama) is Muslim and born in Africa." – My response: Those silly claims are rejected by virtually all conservatives!
- "..... onslaught of (Republican) voter suppression policies targeting minorities." – Voter ID requirements are supported by most conservatives. Voting is important, like cashing a check or driving a car. IDs are easy to acquire. The accusations are absurd!
- "..... border security has been stronger under this president." – Our borders have been porous for decades. No administration has done anything meaningful about it – a shameful fact for all Presidents!
- "..... incredible distortions about (ObamaCare) None of this has happened." – Actually, ObamaCare cost increases are significant – and the CBO is no longer able to make new predictions as to how much costs will exceed predictions.
- "..... (Obama has) significantly reduced the national debt." – National debt has increased dramatically every year of Obama's presidency, almost doubling since Obama was elected. In late August 2014 the debt is almost $18 trillion!

Mr. Shepard, if you choose to be misled, don't inflict it on others!
