The autobiography of Gerard F. Doherty, a lifelong Bostonian, lawyer, real estate developer and political adviser to President John Kennedy, Senator Robert Kennedy, Senator Edward Kennedy, President Lyndon Johnson and President Jimmy Carter. His remarkable winning record as a political strategist in local, state and national campaigns remains unmatched in American politics.

The book tracks Doherty's coincidental life from growing up in Charlestown to Malden Catholic High School, to Harvard University to Suffolk University Law School. His education was interrupted by two years spent in a TB hospital in Saranac Lake, New York. His education was followed by a successful life as a political candidate and strategist. He is also a lawyer who built a substantial practice with focus on real estate development.

He is the only person who had a seat at the table with President Kennedy and Senators Bob and Ted Kennedy.

Foreword by Congressmen Joseph P. Kennedy III
