The Most Holy Body And Blood of Christ

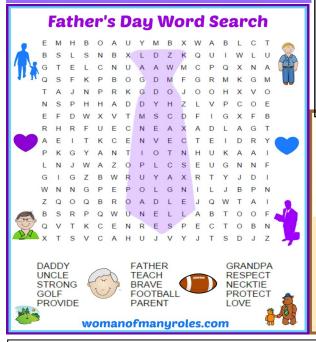

THEME: Sharing Life with Christ

In an affluent society basic food such as bread and water is no problem. However, for many people in the world it still is. Thus, they can understand better than we do that it is a real sign of love and care when God intervenes to feed his people. For them, water and bread are a question of life and death. But we are often hungry and thirsty for other values than sustenance of physical life. In a depersonalized society we suffer from absence where there should be presence. We hunger and thirst for companionship, love, concern, mercy, and respect, which are no problems in the great family of primitive people. Whose need is greater?

Where we suffer from absence, the Lord Jesus wants to be present to us with all the concern and love of a friend for a friend. In the signs of plain daily food for Orientals—water, bread, wine-Jesus indicates what he intends by being present to us. He wants to share life. He wants to strengthen. He wants to mean something to you and me.

When we celebrate the Eucharist, we celebrate this mysterious presence of the Lord Jesus with the community. Open up to make "Communion" possible. "Whoever eats my flesh and drinks my blood will live in me and I in him, says the Lord" (Communion Antiphon).

St. Joseph Missal

TO HELP OUT.

Born Scipione Burali d'Arezzo in Itri, he was the second son of Paolo Burali d'Arezzo and his wife Vittoria Olivares. Paolo was a petty bureaucrat, who was for a time in the service of King Ferdinand the Catholic, performed some diplomatic duties for Pope Clement VII, and was later a member of the entourage of Prospero Colonna, the Count of Fondi.

When Scipione was 13 he entered the University of Salerr and later studied law at Bologna, where he was a star pupil of agni. For about a decade Scipione worked as a lawyer in Naples, earning the nickname "Principe del foro napolitano – Prince of Neapolitan Rights," for his devotion to championing the people against their Spanish overlords, while acquiring a reputation for his legal knowledge, professionalism, and honesty. In 1548 he was named a member of the Royal Council, the principal advisory body to the viceroy, Pedro de Toledo. Scipione undertook many important tasks in this connection, defining the legal relationship between the crown and the nobles, clarifying the rights of the king and those of the pope within the kingdom, and so forth. In 1555 he so impressed Pope Paul IV that he was offered a job at the papal court. Scipione accepted, while at the same time he served as a high official in the civil administration of the Neapolitan army. Not yet 44 years old, he had already attained a considerable measure of success and wealth. But Scipione apparently found that his worldly accomplishments were not spiritually rewarding. He became increasingly religious as the years went by, adopting an austere live-style. This process culminated on January 25, 1557, when Scipione entered the Theatines, the most intellectually demanding of all Catholic orders, adopting the name Paolo Burali d'Arezzo

As Archbishop of Naples, Paolo implemented numerous reforms, ensuring compliance with the decisions of the Council of Trent, while continuing to clash with the Spanish authorities over the Inquisition and other matters. A distinguished scholar, [3] as well as a notable clergyman, Paolo died June 17, 1578 at the age of 67, with much of his work unfinished, a "mournful loss for all Christendom" in the words of St. Filippo Neri. In life an acquaintance of the later Saints Carlo Borromeo, Andrea Avellino, and Roberto Bellarmino, on the tenth anniversary of his death Paolo was elevated to the status of Venerable, and in 1772 he was beatified by Clement XIV. His application for sainthood in still pending
