

Greta is a five-year-old red smooth coat standard dachshund who is extra-long.

She is a very sweet girl and loves to be with her people. Like a typical dachshund, she does not like to go out in the cold, and house training is a work in progress.

She sleeps in a crate, but would rather sleep in the big bed with her people. Greta will protest a little, and then lay down and go to sleep.

She gets along with other dogs, but is not very active or playful. She would prefer to lay next to you with her head on your lap and cuddle.

Greta really comes to life when she goes out for a walk or car ride. She rides well in the car, walks well on a leash and has spunk in her step.

Greta weighs 23.7 pounds. She has had a litter of pups at some time in the past, and has some saggy skin from the puppies, but she is right where she should be with her weight, for a standard size dachshund.

Greta came to us as a stray so her history is not known. She gets nervous and barks at small children when they get loud, but would be fine with older, calm children. Cats are unknown.

Greta cannot do stairs, so a two-story home is not recommended unless the owner is willing and able to carry 23.7-pound Greta up and down the stairs every time they go up or down the stairs. She does use doggie stairs on the couch and bed.

Greta is extremely loving and friendly and wants nothing more than to be with her people. She gives sweet, gentle kisses, and whoever adopts Greta will be a fortunate person to add this wonderful girl to their family.
