

PINK RIBBON OYSTERS

Pink Ribbon Oysters are harvested with love from the Long Island Sound by hand. Oystermen wearing scuba gear embark on small fishing vessels off the North Shore of Long Island. They submerge with baskets and limited tools into the cold, dark water with a buddy on the surface to warn nearby boats and ships of their presence.

Back on land, every oyster is uniformly cleaned and graded for size by hand to ensure consistent qualities: Petite, plump, and without cracks, which ensures natural moisture and superlative fridge life.

25% net revenue of every Pink Ribbon Oyster is donated to the Breast Cancer Research Foundation. BCRF is the highest rated breast cancer organization in the U.S. with an A+ rating from Charity Watch and 4:4 starts from Charity Navigator.

By visiting www.PinkRibbonOysters.com and following @PinkRibbonOysters on Instagram, everyone can track Pink Ribbon Oysters' monthly contributions.

Every dozen oysters on the half shell helps find a cure. Scan the QR code below to watch our online video!

 @PinkRibbonOysters

PINK RIBBON OYSTERS

Pink Ribbon Oysters are harvested with love from the Long Island Sound by hand. Oystermen wearing scuba gear embark on small fishing vessels off the North Shore of Long Island. They submerge with baskets and limited tools into the cold, dark water with a buddy on the surface to warn nearby boats and ships of their presence.

Back on land, every oyster is uniformly cleaned and graded for size by hand to ensure consistent qualities: Petite, plump, and without cracks, which ensures natural moisture and superlative fridge life.

25% net revenue of every Pink Ribbon Oyster is donated to the Breast Cancer Research Foundation. BCRF is the highest rated breast cancer organization in the U.S. with an A+ rating from Charity Watch and 4:4 starts from Charity Navigator.

By visiting www.PinkRibbonOysters.com and following @PinkRibbonOysters on Instagram, everyone can track Pink Ribbon Oysters' monthly contributions.

Every dozen oysters on the half shell helps find a cure. Scan the QR code below to watch our online video!

 @PinkRibbonOysters

