Deep Thoughts

By Jerry Silvestro

Hi Friends and Neighbors,

As I get older, I have discovered that I have had to re-learn certain patterns in my life that I used to perform without any thought. Having to wash and style my hair was an everyday task that I could execute easily. Nowadays, it is no longer the hair on my head I have to deal with, it's hair that grows where it never grew before. The purpose of earning money was to be able to buy all the comforts of life in order to live enjoyably. Now it's amassing it in order to be able to pay the bills in our Golden (Hah!) Years.

The one thing I never realized that I would have to revisit is how to have a conversation with a group of guys that are retired. Now, I don't mean fellas that retired and then got another part-time or double-dipping job. Nope. I mean guys who really don't have anything to do all day. You have to be knowledgeable about a variety of subjects that were never in your purview. Throw out stories of wine, women and song. Sports are of no interest. These are some of the things that I have to brush up on.

The weather. I don't mean what it is doing outside right now or even tomorrow, although that may play a minor part. I'm talking about the weather a week from now or a month from now or what it was in 1977. I'm talking about the weather people on the local stations and what cosmetic enhancements they might have had. These are some of the facts you'll need to know.

Medicine. Well, not necessarily knowing what to take for certain maladies but more importantly, where to buy these drugs. CVS, Rite-Aid, Discount Drug Mart, Walgreens, Giant Eagle? The mind boggles! I won't even get started on the pros and cons of the flu shot.

Stories from the past. These are events that have happened pertaining to your glory years. The difference in the conversations you had about certain subjects such as love conquests or sports successes when you were younger, is that these are mostly lies. Oh, you may think they really happened but chances are they are what you wished would've happened.

(A sidebar here: Unless they involved my Uncle Lucian. In that case they most assuredly are true.)

Here's the beauty of these daily get togethers. You can talk about the same things over and over, day after day. Tell the same stories again and again because no one involved ever remembers what we talked about the last time.

Stay well and God Bless!
