

Love Is A Verb, Not A Noun

William Flanders

1. Don't count on love to come fly - ing in your win - dow. _____

2. Love as a noun may be kind and may be pa - tient, but

3. Not boast - ful nor rude, nev - er sel - fish, slow to an - ger, is

Don't count on love to mys - ter - ious - ly ap - pear, _____ love as a noun al - ways tends to be un - real. When love the ab - strac - tion, a vir - tue some would praise. But borne from a - bove as an an - swer to your trou - bles, _____ love _____ be - comes lov - ing, _____ then real things start to hap - pen, and liv - ing here and now calls for down to earth ex - pres - sion, and fill - ing your heart with in - ten - tions most sin - cere.

love _____ is re - ceived as a fact, not an i - deal.

lov - ing can't ex - pect to be ap - proved in all its ways.

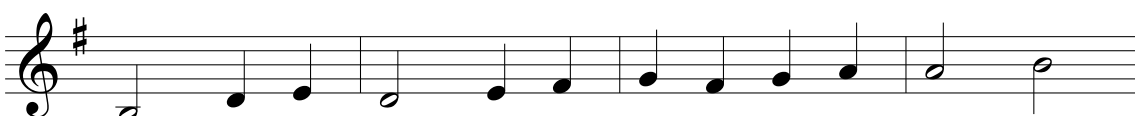

Chorus

Love is - n't there, some pos - ses - ion bought or found.

Love is no thing, noth - ing good to have a - round. Yet peo - ple, at times, can be lov - ing in their ac - tions.

Love is a verb, not a noun.