Hymn of Life

Words: Phyllis Gilbert (adapted)

Music: Andrew D. Brewis, Obligato: Tamsin Bland

The man of God's creating
Neither birth nor death can know.
True being is forever,
Held fast in Love's bright glow.
The now, the past, the future
Eternally are one,
In Mind's pure presence blending,
Man truly is God's son, Man truly is God's son.

In God's sight man is perfect,
His peace and joy unspent.
Love's blessing of life, to all is giv'n with sweet content.
The now, the past, the future
Eternally are one,
In Mind's pure presence blending.
Man truly is God's son, Man truly is God's son.

No grief, no tears, no parting,
And on Love's sacred altar
The fragrance of Life's newness stays.
No one can fall or falter.
The now, the past, the future
Eternally are one,
In Mind's pure presence blending.
Man truly is God's son, Man truly is God's son.

Praise be to God our Father
Who leaves his children never,
But holds them safe within his Love,
His changeless Love, forever.
The now, the past, the future
Eternally are one,
In Mind's pure presence blending.
Man truly is God's son, Man truly is God's son.
Man truly is God's son, Man truly is God's son.
And God and man are one.

I Am

Words (adapted) and Music: Désirée Goyette

I am God's own child
Only reflecting Light
Free from illusion I live
Never to dwell in night

One eternal day
Holy and sacred, pure
I am the child of "I Am"
And one with Love, I am whole

Ever unified
Each of us held inside
Love's all-inclusive embrace
Outstretched, eternal, wide

Trusting, we receive
Only what Mind conceives
We are what Truth knows we are
And one in Love, we are whole
