Today's Fundamental - Tip

•What is the 110 year rule?

The 110-year Rule

 "Before you perform ordinances for a deceased person born within the last 110 years, obtain permission from the closest living relative. Relatives may not want the ordinances performed or may want to perform the ordinances themselves. The closest living relatives are, in this order: a spouse, then children, then parents, then siblings." Member's Guide to Temple and Family History Work (2012) pp. 29-36.

- •The person must have been deceased for at least one year
- You must either be one of the closest living relatives, or you must obtain permission from one of the closest living relatives

 If you are not a spouse, child, parent, or sibling of the deceased, please obtain permission from one of the closest living relatives before doing the ordinances

- Closest living relatives
 - The spouse to whom the individual was married when they died
 - Adult child, parent, sibling
- Verbal approval is acceptable
 - Family members should work together to determine when the ordinances will be done and who will do them
