

Purple Punch

Editorial by Jamie Toth

The grape smell of 54 Green Acres' Purple Punch hits you straight out of the bag. This strain, a product of Larry OG joined with Granddaddy Purps, is a terptastic, grape-flavored jaunt across your taste buds, whether vaped or smoked. We have been growing Purple Punch since 2015. As a Certified Kind farm, 54 Green Acres is dedicated to leadership in the cultivation of sungrown, organic flower. We have tested our cannabis for terpene content since 2015 to increase transparency and demonstrate our commitment to the finest flavors possible.

The grape flavor and smells that emanate from this Purple Punch are intense, and grinding the dense flower releases a lilac scent that complements the citrus tones. Vaping at a low temperature, the clean and sweet floral flavor of lavender joins with the strong taste of blueberries until you get to around 350 which is when the limonene is unlocked. This citrus infusion further cements the grape as the dominant flavor as lemon joins the fruity read from the lower temperature. Moving higher in temperature adds more citrus tones, with even a bit of orange. Higher temperatures still, in the 390 range and above, and you'll detect a pleasing creamy finish to the vapor that tastes like a grape creamsicle. The vapor has a distinct weight to it without becoming overwhelming. Should you smoke Purple Punch you'll be treated to a toasted purple creamsicle flavor that is out of this world.

Purple Punch is an extremely stupefying weed. It's so incredibly stupefying you can forget the first word of a sentence by the time you reach the end. It has an intense, relaxing body buzz that starts from your scalp and cascades down but make sure you have a bottle of water or a nice cup of a fruity sencha tea to help with the cottonmouth. Because of its muscle relaxing capabilities, it would be great for using against cramps, or stress and tension headaches. It's also an exceptional sleep aid, and I've been able to replace a bedtime dose of Valerian root with a well-timed Purple Punch session. Do not operate heavy machinery when courting Purple Punch. But that physical comfort is also accompanied by an uplifted mood. It should come as no surprise that this strain is great at relieving anxiety.

Like all of the strains selected by 54 Green Acres, this strain grows well in the environment that the Illinois River Valley has to offer. The farm has owned water rights for the usage of Sucker Creek since 1882. In addition to watering our fine cannabis, the creek also helps sustain the humans, rabbits, apples, lettuce, and other crops at here 54 Green Acres.

In addition to being watered by a natural, local water source, our Southern Oregon sungrown bud is completely organically grown. 54 Green Acres is a Certified Kind farm, which means that all of their soil, nutrients, and processes are organic and as gentle to the Earth as possible, and are re-certified every year to ensure compliance to rigorous standards. That means each bud is bursting with all of the flavors that nature can bestow.
