

Nazis Among Us

by RoseAnn Salanitri

You might think that a Nazi is a Nazi is a Nazi. You would be wrong. Today's Nazis walk the planet horrified by the actions of Adolph Hitler - the most famous Nazi of all. They fail to understand that they are walking in his footsteps. While Hitler may have been a propaganda genius, his greatest talent was convincing the masses that he had the best interest of the common man at heart. He tugged at their heartstrings and convinced them that Utopia was just a heartbeat away, plus he was a racist par excellence - using evolution to support his superiority claims. Even the name Nazi, evoked feelings of social justice, being literally translated as the National Socialist German Workers' Party, or in German Nationalsozialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartei. Yes, Socialists are Nazis. And like their historical counterparts, today's Nazis have fallen into the trap of thinking that Utopia is just one heartbeat away - with only one American president standing in the way, whom ironically they have called a Nazi. So, if an American president is standing in the way of ushering the dream of Socialism - or Nazism - how can that president be a Nazi? Unfortunately, today's Nazis are just as gullible and as delusional as yesteryear's, but this time billionaire George Soros is leading the charge - not with the charisma of Adolph Hitler, but with the immense finances within his control.

Today the name Nazi is attributed to a person who seeks to impose their views on others in a very autocratic, racist, and/or inflexible way. Saying they were intolerant is an understatement. Either way, today's Socialists have once again proven they are none other than Nazis at heart. They may live in a democratic culture where Constitutional Republicanism and the right to free speech is supposedly respected, but the extent of their intolerance is obvious to all when their ideology is out-voted. For them, if they lose an election, the election results need to be invalidated, which also makes them autocratically-disposed in addition to being intolerant bullies. Although they justify their mob mentality as being morally superior, it is their lack of morality that has hypnotized them into believing that they are entitled to the fruits of someone else's labors - in and of itself thievery - an immoral aspiration. Their short-sightedness forbids them to heed the words of the Iron Lady, Margaret Thatcher, who once wisely said: "The problem with socialism is that you eventually run out of other people's money." The truth of Thatcher's statements makes them as dangerous to a free society as much as it makes them the useful idiots of today's head Socialist and Nazi-admirer, George Soros. Unfortunately, the danger of Soros' useful idiots rank high on the scale of impending destruction. For them, living in comfort supplied by the labor of others is social justice - even when that comfort comes at the cost of slavery, which is injustice at the highest level. Like the Israelites who longed to go back to being slaves in Egypt where they had enough bread to eat rather than face the unknown, today's dangerous Nazis would enslave us all to a government that promises what it cannot deliver. If they had learned from history, they would understand that socialism leads to either bankruptcy or tyranny - both of which annihilate any modicum of Utopian living only possible when people are free and unencumbered by intruding government dictates.

Not only are they ignorant and useful idiots, they are also the most dangerous among us. And as their numbers grow after being fed in the brainwashing beds of anti-Americanism at many American universities, the danger of losing our treasured liberty grows with them. If America is to remain a free nation under God, America must learn to call a spade a "spade", or in this case, a misguided socialist a "Nazi."
