

Several years ago a DPMO/JPAC employee reported that going to Tarawa would NOT be worth the effort, physically or financially, even though it was well documented that more than 400 + Marines were buried there after some very intense fighting in 1943. HISTORY FLIGHT, Inc. <http://historyflight.com/nw/> , a private, non-profit, under the leadership of Mark Noah, refused the advice – today, their teams are still there working the recovery mission. They are determined to find every US Military person buried there and in less than 24 months have located close to 25% already. As a bonus, I share with you that we are confident when we say they, History Flight, has accomplished their work financially at a rate of 80% less than what it would cost the DoD/DPAA units.

To all who are Advocates for those Missing in Action/unaccounted for, when do you stop allowing the 'Tail to Wag the Dog'?

Until they all come home.....
