

Ancient Pathos

This theatre performance is based on Ancient Greek Tragedy.

It is a compilation of the most powerful scenes from well-known tragedies by Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides.

This event takes place in a historical renovated neoclassical theatre building in Athens.

The course of the show is fast and full of life, filled with passions and conflicts. The performance combines modern elements and it shall bring the character close to today's world and the modern day audience. The costumes, the stage design, the video projections, the music, and the brilliant acting contribute to an integral result.

Especially for those who are interested, various educational and creative activities such as discussion after the performance of workshops (seminar of mask construction, seminar of costume) can be organized.
