

Contributors

volume 7 issue 1, Fall 2016

Katie Wright is Senior Lecturer in Sociology at La Trobe University in Melbourne, Australia. She undertakes research in the sociology and history of childhood, psychology and education. She is a member of the Associate Editorial Board of the journal of the British Sociological Association, Sociology and her publications include The Rise of the Therapeutic Society: Psychological Knowledge & the Contradictions of Cultural Change (2011) and Rethinking Youth Wellbeing: Critical Perspectives (2015).

Kyle McMillen is currently a doctoral student in the Education, Society, and Culture program at the University of California, Riverside. Specializing in gender and schooling, Kyle has used historical and sociological methodologies in order to study how masculinity is performed in school settings. Kyle also holds his M.A. in History from Eastern Michigan University, where again masculinity was a focus of his historical inquiry. Additionally, Kyle holds his B.S. from Grand Valley State University with a double-major in History and Political Science.

Simon Bacon is an Independent Scholar based in Poznan, Poland. He has contributed articles to many publications on vampires, monstrosity, science fiction and media studies, and has co-edited books on Undead Memory: Vampires and Human Memory in Popular Culture (2014), Seductive Concepts: Perspectives on Sins, Vices and Virtues (2014), and Little Horrors: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Anomalous Children and the Construction of Monstrosity (2016). His monograph, titled Becoming Vampire: Difference and the Vampire in Popular Culture is due out in 2016.