Modeling the USS Intrepid (CV-11) at the BeachCon Show

The USS Intrepid (CV-11) is a retired aircraft carrier that has been preserved and is now on display at the Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum in New York City. The ship is a significant part of the museum's collection and is a popular attraction for visitors.

The Intrepid was commissioned in 1943 and served in the Pacific Theater during World War II. She was the only aircraft carrier to be damaged in combat during the war. After the war, she was used as a transport ship and then as a command ship. She was decommissioned in 1974 and was later transferred to the museum.

The Intrepid is a fascinating example of American naval power and is a testament to the bravery and sacrifice of the crew members who served on her. She is a must-see for anyone interested in military history and naval warfare.

The Intrepid is a large ship, measuring 271 meters in length and 30 meters in width. She has a displacement of 25,000 tons and is powered by four steam turbines. She has a top speed of 30 knots and a range of 10,000 miles.

The Intrepid is a significant part of the museum's collection and is a popular attraction for visitors. She is a testament to the bravery and sacrifice of the crew members who served on her. She is a must-see for anyone interested in military history and naval warfare.
