Blended Learning

Now let’s gain an understanding of blended learning and its role in the methodology of Sonlight Bay. As defined by the Christensen Institute, blended learning is a formal education program in which a student learns:

- (1) at least in part through online learning, with some element of student control over time, place, path, and/or pace;
- (1) at least in part in a supervised brick-and-mortar location away from home;
- (1) and the modalities along each student’s learning path within a course or subject are connected to provide an integrated learning experience.

The students follow a rotation model – a course or subject in which students rotate on a fixed schedule or at the teacher’s discretion between learning modalities, at least one of which is online learning. Other modalities might include activities such as small-group or full-class instruction, group projects, individual tutoring, and pencil-and-paper assignments. The student learns mostly on the brick-and-mortar campus, except for any homework assignments.
