

This Week at a Glance:

LANDSCAPE

- The gardening committee, Don Macaluso, David Moehring and myself, walked with the gardener and Gerry this morning. The grass looks exceptionally good, finally all the weeds seem to be killed. There are several plants missing and the committee went round each individual area and with the help of Moses of Quality Green, selected certain types of plants that will thrive in those areas. Moses informed us that he has exchanged at least 30% of the sprinkler heads.

Many of our plants and trees got damaged with the excessive heat of the summer. These should come back with a little TLC. We did make it clear to Moses that when owners asked him to do things in common areas such as not to trim the plants, he should refer them to management. In my opinion the grounds look better than it has looked in a long time and I am pleased.
