A note from Rick: Markets were steady this week at TLA. Nothing really stood out as a talking point on Tuesday's sale. We had a very active market throughout the day and prices were very steady compared to the last few weeks in all categories. The driving horse sale on Saturday followed suit with strong prices and a very active market. We had 165 horses to offer with the top horse selling for $25,000. The construction of the new building is definitely in full swing. There are several crews working on different phases of the project and the progress that has been made in just 3 weeks is really amazing to me. The weather has definitely been interesting this week. I've heard talk of anywhere from 2" to 8" of rain depending which cloud you were under. For the most part I think most of this rain was welcomed, however the reports of wind and storm damage in different areas were not. Hope everyone gets the chance to celebrate the 4th with family and friends. It's a great opportunity to honor the independence of this great country that sometimes gets taken for granted. Enjoy and be safe! See you at TLA!
