UPDATE ON FAITH DEVELOPMENT FOR CHILDREN

For all families that have registered for our faith development program at St. Augustine's, I am pleased to say that we have a tentative start date for the week of October 18, 2020.

Each of you that have registered will be receiving an email with the time and date of your scheduled session. Please take note that, due to this year's regulations, that session will be your only time to attend. We are no longer able to allow families to move between sessions due to the maintaining of our "bubbles".

For those that have not registered, please be advised that pre-registration is mandatory in order to attend our sessions. Families that are not on the attendance sheet for the session will not be allowed to attend. So, if you plan to attend our sessions this year, please register as soon as possible. You can register on line at www.gasmoncton.com under the faith development tab or you can complete one of the forms located at the back of the church and drop it off in the mail slot located by the office door facing Dominion Street. Fr. Angus & I are looking forward to spending what may be a challenging, but yet fun filled, year of faith development with all of you.

With peace & blessings, Eileen

Attention All Parishioners

Queen of All Saint has been in consultation with Universal Portrait Studios and have decided to have them produce for us a Parish Unit Picture Directory. This directory will have pictures of our parishioners from all three of our churches and is a wonderful tool for getting to know your fellow church goers. Universal is looking to start calling all parishioners beginning the week of October 12th. If you would prefer that we do not give them your contact information, please let the office know by Friday, October 9th. If we do not hear from you, we will assume that it is OK to give out your number.

Exploring our Faith

"When I expected it to yield grapes, why did it yield wild grapes?"

Today's "Parable of the Landlord and the Tenant" describes a landlord who leases his healthy vineyard to tenants. The tenants abuse the vineyard and anyone whom the landlord sends to remind them of their responsibilities. It is easy to interpret the parable only as Jesus' incrimination of the Pharisees or those who tried to extinguish his message. But as Sr. Mary McGlone of Celebration explains, "Parables aren't puzzles to be understood, but calls to action crafted to make us uncomfortable enough to change our ways." In this parable, therefore, the tenants aren't meant to be some abstract "others" who lived long ago, but are meant to lead us to examine our own attitudes and behaviours toward our responsibilities of worldly stewardship.

This past year has given many examples of how this simple parable is still relevant today. When outcries of the "#MeToo" or "Black Lives Matter" movements are met with violent resistance, it shows me that the vineyard of our shared humanity still has a long way to go before God's plan of justice and equality are realized. When I read how activist Greta Thunberg and our own Minister of the Environment, Catherine McKenna, have continued to receive threats of violence and death because they advocate environmental responsibility, I wonder if the modern tenants of God's vineyard understand that their own well-being is intimately tied to their responsible use of the vineyard? Even Covid-19 has demonstrated to me how simple attitudes indicate my own lack of committed stewardship of God's kingdom. Am I any different than the tenants of the parable when I ignore health recommendations to use a mask because I don't like the way it steams up my glasses, or feel my that my desire to gather with friends without taking recommended precautions is more important than the risk of infecting those more vulnerable around me? Any time we act as though we are the only masters of our environment or deem our wants more important than the well-being of others, we are living with the same attitudes of the tenants of today's parable. We too, ignore God's plan for the vineyard and abuse the dignity of the people God has sent and entrusted to do his will.

The "Parable of the Landlord and the Tenants," happens to fall on the final Sunday of this year's month-long celebration of the "Season of Creation." This annual time within our liturgical year evolved out of Pope Francis' 2015 encyclical "Laudato Si: On the Care for our Common Home," and is meant to promote prayer and action to protect our shared earth and humanity. This encyclical, "called upon not only Catholics all over the world, but the entire global community to recognize how every person is profoundly connected and dependant on one another, as well as on the natural world in which we all live." (CCCB 01/06/20)

We are all tenants of God's marvelous vineyard, and as tenants, we have been entrusted to become responsible stewards of that vineyard and of all who work and live in that vineyard. The well-being of all, depends upon our ability to respect and nourish all that God has gifted us.

Mary Joshi

PARISHIONERS OF OUR LADY OF MERCY: On behalf of Parish Council, we wish to congratulate you and thank you most sincerely for your generosity to our Weekly Collection. We are overwhelmed with your dedication to our beautiful and vibrant Parish. In this most unusual year and the loss of close to 3 months of Masses it is not surprising to see our revenues are down by roughly 35 per cent from last year. Notwithstanding the reduction, our Income from your contributions is remarkable.

With winter rapidly approaching two factors we would like you to consider are Electricity and Heating costs. If it is possible for you to contribute by way of special envelopes marked for Church Maintenance, we will insure any funds received will be attributed to energy and heating costs.

Thank you most sincerely
Mike Sullivan, Parish Council Chair, Our Lady of Mercy

Our Lady of Mercy: Due to the continued limited seating capacity for masses it would be greatly appreciated that if you are scheduled for the mass but unable to make it to please contact either Odette at 531-0252 or Mike at 351-4263 so they can fill your seat with someone who is on the waiting list.
