Insm1 as a marker for human neuroendocrine (NE) and neuroepithelial cancer (IRB approved and funded Pathology Department R&D Grant).

Developed RT-PCR based strategy for quantitation of INSM1 expression in neuroendocrine cancer. Adapted anti-INSM1 antibody for immunohistochemistry (IHC) in human formalin-fixed paraffinized tissue. Screened patient samples to correlate expression of INSM1 with malignancy, and evaluated INSM1 as a marker of disease

Identification of novel prognostic and therapeutic targets in neuroendocrine neoplasms using multivariate correlation of molecular, phenotypic, and clinical behavior (IRB approved and funded UW Carbone Cancer Center Grant)

Use tissue microarray to test novel and developing IHC markers for NE neoplasms and correlate with clinical and pathologic properties of the neoplasms. Apply whole exome sequencing to selected cases to attempt to identify driver mutations in NE neoplasms.

- 2006-2010 Research under Jaime García-Añoveros, Ph.D.
Department of Anesthesiology
Northwestern University
INSM-1 and INSM2 in mammalian neural development and evolution.
Bred INSM-1 knockout mice and characterized phenotype. Cloned INSM-1 and INSM2 from primate and rodent species to compare rates of evolution and specify evolutionary differences between the species. Characterized the phenotype of INSM-1 knockout mouse in the olfactory epithelium (OE)

Northwestern University
Pax-3 and Pax-7 transcription factors in Xenopus neural crest development.
Manipulated Xenopus embryos using overexpression, misexpression, and knockdown approaches to dissect the role of Pax-3 and Pax-7 homeodomain transcription factors in the induction of neural crest. Microinjection of mRNA constructs and morpholino antisense nucleotides was followed by in situ hybridization to analyze morphological changes. RT-PCR and Western blots were used to confirm embryonic results with molecular data.

- 1998-2000 Research Assistant to Kevin Padian, Ph.D.
Department of Integrative Biology, University of California at Berkeley
New material of the basal Thyreophoran Scutellosaurus lawleri from the Kayenta Formation (Lower Jurassic) of Arizona.
Described previously recovered fossil material from the basal thyreophoran dinosaur, Scutellosaurus lawleri. Cleaned and assembled fossil material from UC Museum of Paleontology collections. Photographed and sketched the prepared material for publication, and compared against the holotype specimen in Arizona. Analysis of the specimen led to slight revision of the phylogenetic placement of S. lawleri within the thyreophora.
