

Jason Pavluchuk, Founder
202-285-6414
Jason@jpavllc.com
www.jpavllc.com

US DOT Announces $40 million Smart Cities Challenge

The US Department of Transportation announced a $40 million Smart Cities competition. Below is an excerpt from their announcement as well as a link to the competition. This competition presents a tremendous opportunity for entities, both public and private, to get engaged.

From DOT website: "To show what is possible when communities use technology to connect transportation assets into an interactive network, the Smart City Challenge will concentrate federal resources into one medium-sized city, selected through a nationwide competition. Funding of up to $40 million in funding will go to one mid-sized city that puts forward bold, data-driven ideas to improve lives by making transportation safer, easier, and more reliable."

See more at: US DOT SMART CITIES CHALLENGE