Scenic Landscapes and Wildlife Photographer

Owner of: Lion's Gate Photography

My interest in photography began in middle school and continued throughout my career as a historian for various units in the United States Air Force. That is where I began concentrating on scenic and wildlife photograph. With the numerous deployments and permanent duty stations I refined my art and improved my equipment.

After retiring from the service, I began working with a school photographer in Idaho and learned individual and family portrait, school sports, and wedding photography. I started my own business and did well enough to support my family.

With the advent of digital photograph and the rapid improvements in digital SLR cameras I began concentrating on scenic and wildlife shots while traveling to different states looking for beautiful locations. I still do occasional commercial photography, but my main focus is scenic and wildlife art. My work is currently on display at galleries in Sierra Vista, Benson, Cochise and Patagonia, Arizona. You can see my collections on my personal website and Fine Art America using these two internet addresses: www.lionsgatephotography.com and www.lionsgatephoto.com.
