A Note from Rick: Markets were lower across the board this week. We had a big run of bull calves and they took the biggest hit, especially the medium to lower grade calves. The feeder market was a little softer as well, but was not tested with very many groups of #1 cattle. Dairy replacement heifers were steady to maybe a little cheaper, but we did have a couple nice groups that sold very well. Butcher cattle followed suit, steady to a little weaker with the really top cattle selling very well. Butcher cows and butcher bulls were 3-5 cents cheaper on the average, which is the first significant downturn in several months. I sure wish I had better news to report on the markets this week, but it is what it is. Hopefully, the solar eclipse will shine a bright light on markets next week. See you at TLA!
