DID YOU KNOW?

From just eight women gathered in a cozy church room to what it is today—a mission organization comprising 800,000 members around the world—United Methodist Women are celebrating 150 years strong this month.

On a rainy day in Boston a century and a half ago, the founders of what is today's United Methodist Women gathered at Tremont Street Church in Boston to form the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the then-Methodist Episcopal Church (what is today The United Methodist Church). But though they were small, they were determined. The next week, they more than tripled their number, and 70 years later, they had sent out more than 1,500 missionaries to work on four continents and in 17 nations.

"For 150 years women have organized for mission work. Truly the Lord has been with us, providing strength and courage when circumstances were daunting. I am honored and excited to begin the next 150 years. With God as our leader we know it will be great!"
