Dear Mr. Handa,

We are delighted to provide additional information on the Fortune Global Forum, to be held November 2-4, in San Francisco. You are cordially invited to join an extraordinary group of top CEOs, as well as innovators, builders, and technology leaders from some of the most dynamic, emerging companies worldwide. The Forum is rapidly approaching, and we continue to confirm our roster and finalize our agenda, so please check www.FortuneGlobalForum.com for breaking news.

The Forum will draw upon the entrepreneurial spirit of Silicon Valley to explore the implications of disruptive technology trends for the 21st-century corporation. The program will help CEOs navigate their organizations through an era of accelerated change that is altering the fundamental structure and relationships of large global companies. In addition, the Fortune Global Forum will offer opportunities for high-level relationship-building, from the gala opening dinner to small-group roundtables to private home dinners on the second night. Spouses or companions are invited to join for the dinners and to participate in business sessions.

An extraordinary group of leaders from 33 nations has already committed to participate in this major event, including founders, chairmen, presidents, and CEOs of Aetna, AmerisourceBergen, BT Group, Best Buy, Charles Schwab, Cisco, Credit Suisse, Daimler, DreamWorks, DuPont, Flex, Google, IBM, ITT, JPMorgan Chase, Konica Minolta, Lenovo, Lloyds Banking Group, Levi Strauss, Lockheed Martin, Massachusetts Mutual, McKinsey, Petronas, PTT Public Company, Salesforce, Siemens, State Farm, Taiwan Semiconductor, Tele2, Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Uber, UPM-Kymmene, Wells Fargo, and other innovators. A select list of participants is enclosed.

You can register online at www.FortuneGlobalForum.com (where you will also find the most up-to-date Forum information) or by using the enclosed form. We hope you will join us in San Francisco in November.

Sincerely,

Alan Murray
