

Sexual Discrimination

The firm represents employees who have been discriminated against on the basis of sex, in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Kentucky Commonwealth law, as well as under the laws of other states. In addition, the firm represents employees in asserting their rights under the Equal Pay Act of 1963, which requires that men and women be given equal pay for equal work. We have represented employees and applicants for employment who have been discriminated against because of their gender with regard to hiring, termination, promotion, compensation, job training, and other terms, conditions or privileges of employment. The firm is also committed to representing employees who are subjected to sexual harassment—a form of sex discrimination.
