Seals-it & Seals-it Off Road

October/November/December
2015

Edition 4 / Volume 1

"What We Do Best"

Skips Corner

As this edition of the Seals-it News go to print, fall has begun and the leaves have started to change color. Fall also means it is that time of year again when racing begins to slow down and many tracks shutdown for the season. It is also that time of year for teams to begin the off season rebuild of racecars and equipment. Seals-it has everything teams need for the rebuild season. Till next time, thank you for reading our newsletter.

Seals-it Off Road

Seals-it Off Road division has been taking the time to attend off road shows and getting to know our customers who come to these events. The feedback we have gotten has been valuable in helping us improve our product line for the off road community. To learn more about Seals-it Off Road check out the website at: www.sealsitoffroad.com.

Allyn Tool

As noted in the last newsletter, Allyn Tool, Seals-it sister company, launched a new and updated website along with a Facebook page. The new site is both informative and educational as to what the company offers in the way of manufacturing services. You can find the company Facebook page at: www.facebook.com/allyntool and website at: www.allyntool.com.

Product Spotlight

As we continue to improve our product line based on feedback we have from the end user, we have redesigned the AS & TT Series seals. The new design is lite and half the weight of the current seals. Check it out at: www.sealsit.com.

Indoor Show Season Begins

• • •

Now that fall is here, the shows begin to move indoors but over the last few months we have been busy attending shows all over the country and several more to come. Check out the event listing on page 2 to see where you can find us next.
